AWACS sale dealt second defeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan suffered his second AWACS defeat in as many days Thursday when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 9-8 to disapprove the Saudi Arabian arms sale.

Another close vote is expected in the full Senate, which will decide the issue around Oct. 29. The House voted its disapproval of the deal Wednesday, 301-111, but the deal will go through unless the Senate follows suit.

One Republican, Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota, joined the panel's eight Democrats opposing the $8.5 billion sale of five radar-equipped Airborne Warning and Control System aircraft plus enhancement hardware for Saudi F-15s.

All the other Republicans, led by committee chairman Charles Percy of Illinois and Senate GOP leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, supported Reagan. Reagan, in Philadelphia for a speaking engagement, lobbied hard for the package by telephone right up until the vote.

He succeeded in convincing Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., who had been an original sponsor of the resolution to disapprove the sale. But he failed on Boschwitz.

Reagan had this reaction to the Foreign Relations Committee vote: "Frankly, I'm gratified it was that close. Of course we wish it had gone the other way."

After the vote, the president again declined to rule out the possibility of sending Saudi Arabia the aircraft under legal emergency powers even if the Senate rejects the sale, but said that option is not under consideration.

"I don't know . . . whether we would consider it or not," Reagan said.

He said he remains confident the full Senate will not vote against the sale, and repeated that the deal represents no risk to Israel.

"I just happen to believe there will be enough senators that will recognize the importance to us of having the relationship that this can lead to," Reagan said.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a key opponent on whose judgment on the issue a number of Democrats rely, voted against the package as expected — but made it clear he still has not made a final decision about the Senate vote.

"I want to see AWACS in the area," he told the committee. "I hope things can be changed (in the Saudi package) so that I can vote for it . . . I hope something can still be worked out in the coming weeks."

Baker told reporters the committee's decision reflects a turning of the tide in the president's favor.

Pressler's defection from the list of opponents means the number of senators committed or leaning against the sale has shrunk to 52 in the United Press International tally — one more than a majority. Earlier this week, it was as high as 54.

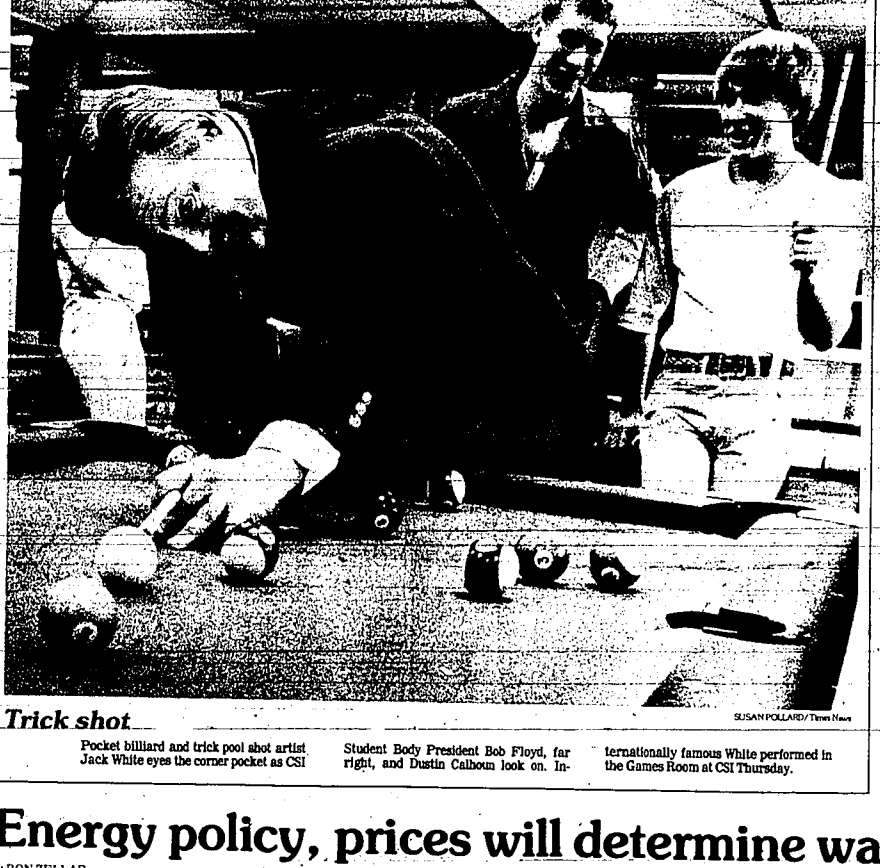

And Senate opponents of the AWACS sale conceded late Thursday there now may be only 48 "hard" votes against the sale — not counting those leaning against.

During the committee's debate that preceded the vote, Percy warned that a defeat of the sale would "deal a devastating blow to the power and prestige of the presidency . . . and cast doubt on the ability of the United States to conduct foreign policy."

Pressler said he decided to support it because "of what it means to the presidency."

Baker said, "In the 15 years I have been in the Senate, I cannot recall a single foreign policy issue which has more far-reaching consequences."

The proposed sale won a vote of confidence earlier in the day when the Senate Armed Services Committee voted 10-5 to back it, but that committee has no jurisdiction over the resolution, and the key vote came in foreign relations.

Senate bill assures funds for retirement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Thursday unanimously approved a stopgap bill to keep the Social Security system out of the red next year.

The bill also saves the $122-a-month minimum benefit for all but 400,000 of the current 3 million recipients.

Since the House earlier voted to restore the minimum benefit for all recipients, a Senate-House conference committee must work out the differences between the two versions.

The Senate bill, approved 95-0, would allow reallocation of revenues among the three Social Security funds, to prevent the retirement fund from running in the red next year.

The Senate version also would eliminate the minimum monthly benefit for 400,000 current recipients, who mostly include government retirees with pensions over $300 a month and Americans living overseas.

The minimum monthly benefit — eliminated entirely by Congress during the first round of budget cuts this summer — is given to those Americans who did not earn enough money during their working days to qualify for regular Social Security payments.

President Reagan, who originally wanted the benefit eliminated, last month asked Congress to restore it for the truly needy.

The Senate bill "should put an end to all the horror stories about Social Security going broke this year or in the next few years," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Before voting on the measure after two days of debate, the Senate turned back Democratic attempts to fund part of the retirement system with the oil industry's windfall profits and to require the president to announce details of his budget cuts through 1984.

The Senate voted 96-0 to approve a non-binding amendment that said it is the "sense of Congress" that no current Social Security beneficiaries be cut from the rolls.

Also accepted was an amendment extending excise taxes on gasoline, tires and oil through 1989, and highway use taxes through 1990. Both were set to expire soon.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., proposed an amendment that would have repealed $14.2 billion in tax breaks given oil companies under Reagan's tax program, and would have used that money to help fund Social Security. But the Senate voted 65-30 to sidetrack Eagleton's amendment.

Eagleton said his provision was an attempt to dismantle Reagan's tax program, which he described as "the worst legislative abomination in the history of the U.S. Senate."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said the Eagleton proposal would set a "very dangerous precedent" by making "fundamental change in the financing and philosophy of Social Security."

"There's no support for the use of general revenues," Dole added.

The Senate rejected 50-47 an amendment by Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia that would have forced the administration to tell Congress by Nov. 15 where it plans to make budget cuts for the next three years.

Byrd said the administration's budget projections include $82 million in "unidentified cuts" for fiscal 1984 alone, and he is concerned the president plans to make some of them in Social Security.

Energy policy, prices will determine water management

By RON ZELLAR
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Energy policy and prices will dictate state water policy for the near future, officials of the Idaho Department of Water Resources said Thursday.

Whether the state can meet its goal of 850,000 acres of new agricultural land by the year 2020 depends on energy prices and the resolution of a ban on electrical hookups for new irrigation, according to Wayne Haas, the administrator of the department's research and analysis division.

Haas made the remarks between two informational meetings the Idaho Water Resources Board held Thursday in Twin Falls.

Participants in the evening session were divided on whether the state should continue to encourage new agricultural development. Some said that maintaining the state's hydroelectric base for electricity supply should receive the primary emphasis.

"We need the power now. I'm not sure we need the land," said Roger Clark of Castleford.

Joe Flood of Rupert countered that existing agricultural land is being diminished by urban growth, and that development of replacement land is necessary to preserve the state's place in the agricultural marketplace.

"We're losing land to urban areas every day. If we don't start developing some land, we're going to be sorry," Flood said.

Elaine Martin, whose husband is an applicant for land under the Carey Act, said the water plan's goal of 850,000 new acres could be too high. But she said economic necessity would cause developers, on their own, to bypass roughly half of the land included in the total.

"You're looking at about 400,000 acres at best," Martin said.

Don Kramer, a member of Water Resource Board, said board members themselves are uncertain how much land can be developed and whether the plan's initial figure should be reduced.

The Department of Water Resources, in cooperation with the Bureau of Land Management, has been attempting to process 20,000 acres of land applications a year. The two agencies presently are studying two tracts of potential agricultural land in the Glenns Ferry area.

Haas said BLM officials should complete classification of land in one of the tracts within 30 days. Applications for land in the initial tract were made under the federal Desert Land Entry program. Filings in the second tract were made primarily under the Carey Act, a state-administered program that requires farmers to live on the land.

Plowing in portions of the first tract could begin as early as next summer, Haas said, except that farmers would be prohibited from using electricity for pumping because of Idaho Power Co.'s moratorium on new irrigation hookups.

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission, responding to a challenge of the moratorium earlier this year, endorsed it. The issue of whether Idaho Power has rights to Snake River water to generate electricity is argued before the Idaho Supreme Court in December.

John Rosholt, a Twin Falls attorney representing Idaho Power in the case, said following the afternoon session that the state court could take up to a year to decide the issue once arguments are presented.

The Water Resources Board will take testimony on amendments to its state plan at four hearings later this month. The Twin Falls hearing is scheduled for Oct. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall, 321 E. Second Ave. (The time and place were reported incorrectly in Wednesday's Times-News.)

Rosholt says he will argue that the goal of 850,000 new farm acres, which was established by the board in 1976,

Immediate 4.8 % raises

Government civilians get pay hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Thursday ordered an immediate 4.8 percent pay boost for nearly 2 million white and blue collar government employees.

In an executive order, the president continued a pay freeze for about 40,000 government officials who are earning over $50,000 a year.

Under the order, 1.4 million white collar employees will receive the increase retroactive to the pay period beginning around Oct. 4.

The pay boost also will affect 490,000 federal blue collar employees, but they are paid according to regional pay scales, and their increases do not have a uniform effective date.

The increase for civilian workers followed by one day the signing of a bill providing wage increases for 2.1 million men and women in the armed forces, ranging from 10 percent to 17 percent.

Reagan acted under the Pay Comparability Act of 1970, which requires an adjustment in federal white collar pay each October to reflect differences in the prevailing wages paid federal and private sector employees.

A commission had recommended a 15 percent increase under the comparability principle, but the administration last Aug. 31 asked Congress to approve an overall increase of about 4.8 percent.

Since Congress did not disapprove his proposal to limit the increase to 4.8 percent, Reagan was able to implement it.

The white collar pay increases are expected to cost about $2 billion in the fiscal year that started Oct. 1, and the military increases will cost about $4.65 billion in the same period.

Under current law, top level federal executives, members of Congress and the judiciary also are increased by the same percentage as federal civilian pay. But a continuing resolution Congress passed Oct. 1 puts a cap on pay increases for government employees earning over $50,000 a year.

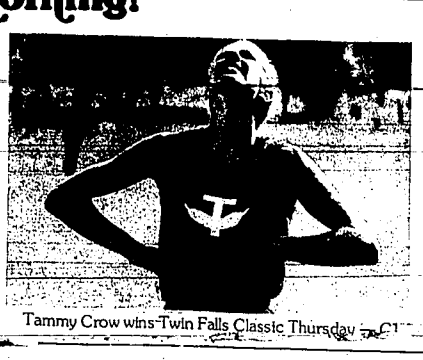

The only exceptions to the pay ceiling are federal judges who received pay hikes prior to midnight Sept. 30.

Jury upsets Milwaukee police

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Police Thursday condemned a coroner's jury recommendation that three white officers be prosecuted for their part in the death of an innocent young black man.

Milwaukee's district attorney was considering which of the jury's recommendations to accept. A black leader said the jury's action had relieved tensions in the black community.

"It's placating a vociferous majority," one police lieutenant said. The verdict "ain't going to do much for the morale of the department," another said.

"It's a terrible miscarriage of justice," said police chief Harold Breier. "What action will the officers take, having been second-guessed in this case?"

But black State Rep. Annette Williams of Milwaukee said the verdicts "relieved a lot of tension and frustration that has been lingering for months" among the city's blacks.

Reagan offers pipeline changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Thursday sent Congress a package of changes to existing law that would enable construction of a proposed $25 billion Alaskan gas pipeline to be financed partly through customer gas bills.

In an accompanying message, Reagan said his proposed waiver of the 1977 Natural Gas Transportation Act "is designed to clear away government obstacles to proceeding with private financing of this important project."

The package, however, is expected to face rough sledding in the House, where influential conservative Republicans have already declared their opposition to any departure from the original requirement for full private financing.

Congress now has 60 days to accept or reject the waiver package sought by the Northwest Alaskan pipeline consortium because it was informed by its bankers that the 4,800-mile pipeline project could not be financed without the waivers.

$6.5 million given anonymously

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A couple made a $6.5 million anonymous donation to the Hartford Foundation for Public Giving Thursday in what was described as the largest gift to a community foundation by a living donor.

William E. Glynn, chairman of the charitable organization, said the donors who wished to remain anonymous "wanted to share their good fortune with their community" and left it up to the foundation on how to allocate the money.

Glynn said it was believed the largest gift from a live donor ever given to a local, or community, foundation, although larger donations have been received by national or state foundations.

President honors youngster

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — President Reagan Thursday saluted 16-year-old John Terry for the youngster's efforts in voluntarily cleaning up his neighborhood.

Reagan met briefly with the black teenager to emphasize his commitment to bring more initiatives from private citizens into the government's operations.

Terry, known to his neighbors as "the boy wonder of the caretakers," is well known in Philadelphia for raking, sweeping and gathering litter in his neighborhood and in an urban park, and boarding up vacant houses.

A White House spokesman said the youth did the work at his own expense and refused to accept any form of compensation.

Polish officials compromise

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — In a move that could head off a threatened national strike, the Polish government Thursday agreed to the Solidarity union's demand for a temporary freeze on food prices.

At the same time, however, the Communist Party expelled top Solidarity activist Bogdan Lis — the union's highest ranking party member — and strikes or strike threats involving thousands of workers flared in at least eight provinces over dwindling supplies and empty grocers' shelves.

A Solidarity delegation led by executive presidium member Grzegorz Palka met for six hours of crisis talks on the economy with a government team headed by Finance Minister Marian Krzak in the first union-government talks since the end of August.

Koch wants torturer hung

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Edward Koch said the man who raped and tortured a nun in a Harlem convent should be hanged and police reported Thursday the third attack on the neighborhood's Catholic clergy in less than a week.

Koch, who denounced the crime as a "despicable act of depravity," authorized Thursday a reward of $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the rape and torture of the Sister of Charity nun at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Convent.

"I want to see the guy, figuratively, hung," said Koch. "We don't do that, I know . . . I do believe we should restore the death penalty" for horrendous crimes.

Police said a 17-year-old youth robbed a religious brother and a church custodian of $100 in front of St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic church but was seized by two police officers.

is unrealistic under new economic conditions and the rising price of electricity.

The Twin Falls Canal Co., another of Rosholt's clients, has applied for falling water rights to build a hydroelectric plant at Milner dam.

Water department officials have said the Milner hydro plant would rule out using canals to transfer off-season flows from the Snake River to new agricultural developments in southwest Idaho.

A governor's task force last week completed work on a proposed state energy plan. However, the document does little to resolve the conflict between agriculture and new hydro development.

Officials reviewing land applications under the Desert Land Entry and Carey Act programs have studied the feasibility of using natural gas to power large pumps for clusters of farms, he said, but the alternative does not appear to be competitive.

U.S.-manned AWACS begin patrol over Egyptian skies

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Two U.S. AWACS spy planes sent in a show of support for President Hosni Mubarak arrived in Egypt Thursday.

The planes began patrolling its skies to keep tabs on Libyan troop movements and Soviet naval maneuvers in the Mediterranean.

The Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Khadafy immediately denounced the arrival of the planes as "a challenge and a provocation" and demanded their withdrawal.

President Jaafar Numeiry of Sudan, Egypt's closest ally in Africa, warned he will establish a "suicide army" to carry the growing conflict with Libya to the shores of Tripoli itself.

The U.S. planes flew in from Tinker Air Force Base, Okla., but instead of landing at a base near Cairo as scheduled, went straight "on mission," base commander Brig. Gen. Ahmed Nasr said.

He said the decision to put the planes right to work implied no emergency but was a "a political decision" — presumably a way of showing off America's ability to protect its friends in the region.

"Nothing is happening," Nasr said in reply to a volley of questions from reporters who had been invited to the airbase, 20 miles northwest of Cairo, to watch the planes land.

But there were also more hints that Sudan, with Egyptian help, was preparing to go to war with Libya, which it has accused of staging air raids on its western border villages.

Radio Cairo quoted Sudanese Foreign Minister Mohammed Mirghany Mubarak as saying the air strikes, mounted by Libyan planes stationed in neighboring Chad, were continuing.

"Sudan's patience has run out," he said. "Sudan will use all the available means and efforts for the protection of its soil."

Egypt disclosed Wednesday it has sent troops to Sudan to "teach a lesson" to Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy should he invade.

In Washington, a senior Defense Department official said that Pentagon is pushing Congress for $100 million in emergency military aid to Sudan to help offset a military threat from Libya.

"The clear and present military danger at the moment lies in the Sudan," the official said. "Egypt is in grave trouble if hostile forces seize the Sudan."

"A package was put together the very week of the death of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat," the official said. "We hope for delivery before the end of calendar 1981."

In an interview with the Cairo daily Al Ahram published Friday, Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiry said he was "seriously thinking of active defense that would carry (subversive) operations to the interior of Libya."

"God willings, these actions will soon be felt in Tripoli and possibly inside Khadafy's own home."

Saying he could mobilize 10,000 guerrillas, Numeiry stated: "I emphasize that I will carry the battle from Sudan to the interior of Libya. These secret operations are easy."

The Libyan equivalent of a foreign ministry accused the United States of "Trying to complete the occupation of Egypt and impose control in order to turn it into a center influencing the region."

It added: "America knows more than others that there is no danger threatening Sudan and Egypt on the part of Libya and that there are no Libyan military concentrations along the borders of these two countries."

The Libyans protested what they called America's "muscle-flexing near Arab shores in the Mediterranean, the concentration of its rapid deployment force, the massing of its forces in Egypt under the pretext of joint maneuvers and its dispatch of AWACS spy planes to Egypt."

The Libyan protest, which was carried by the official Jamahiriyah news agency, called American actions "a challenge and a provocation to the peoples of the region, and a real danger to their security."

It demanded the cancellation of the planned joint maneuvers, the withdrawal of the AWACs planes and the removal of the U.S. Sixth Fleet from Arab shores.

Stockman takes budget battle to Senate panel

DAVID STOCKMAN
... much more to be done

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Amid growing signs of trouble for President Reagan's budget package, budget director David Stockman urged a Senate panel Thursday not to discourage a "mid-course correction" to keep the economic program on track.

"I wouldn't think a mid-course correction is something to be avoided, looked down on," Stockman said in testimony before the Senate Budget Committee.

He congratulated Congress for earlier budget cuts, but said there is much more to be done to get government spending and the economy under control.

Democrats seized the opportunity to attack the administration for conducting a "piecemeal operation" by proposing more and more cuts rather than one comprehensive package.

Later in the day, Senate Democrats failed in an attempt to force the administration to identify by Nov. 15 all the budget cuts it will make over the next three years.

On a 50-47 straight party-line vote, Republicans killed an amendment by Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, who said the administration should open its "Pandora's box (and) let us have a look."

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the GOP-controlled Budget Committee, said he still hopes a new package of "major" 1982 budget and tax measures can be enacted. But he joined other Republican leaders in recognizing it may be much smaller than Reagan's proposals.

Domenici and other GOP leaders decided at a meeting Wednesday they probably will succeed in getting only $5 billion of Reagan's $16 billion package of new budget cuts and tax-raising measures by the end of the year.

"I am hopeful we will put together a package that includes major 1982 cuts and revenue enhancements," Dominici told reporters Thursday. "If it can be done with $8 billion, that's fine. If it can be done with $16 billion, that's better."

He tried to minimize the importance of the exact size of the package and said Congress should concentrate most on spending restraints for 1983 and 1984.

Finance Committee chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Wednesday he does not expect to bring a tax measure to the floor before the end of the year. He said he does not want to open up a bill that could be heavily amended with special-interest goodies as Congress heads home for Christmas.

Domenici said it would be "totally useless" to begin Senate debate on a tax bill, and said he hopes it will be part of a single package similar to the omnibus budget-cutting measure Congress passed this summer.

Democrats criticized the new round of cuts and the massive Reagan tax bill, which they said will cause huge deficits to continue.

Bulgarian writer winner of Nobel Prize for Literature

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Elias Canetti, a Bulgarian Jew who fled the Nazis, won the 1981 Nobel Prize for Literature Thursday in recognition of his works exploring the rise of Fascism with "a wealth of ideas and artistic power."

Canetti, 76, who has written only one novel but numerous memoirs, plays, travel books and articles on mass movements, writes exclusively in German and his work has been published in 17 countries, including the United States.

In awarding the $180,000 prize, the Swedish Academy said "the exiled and cosmopolitan author Canetti has one native land, and that is the German language."

His German publishers, Hansa Verlag, said Canetti — described as a gentle, grandfatherly figure" — was trying to get adjusted to the news of being a Nobel laureate and had asked them to "protect him." He was unavailable for comment at his north London home.

The Nobel citation said his writing was marked by "a broad outlook, a wealth of ideas and artistic power." He writes with a "style and a lucidity that have very few qualitative equivalents . . . in the German language this century."

Canetti writes in German, a legacy of his schooldays in Vienna, Austria. He also studied in Zurich and Frankfurt. In Vienna he became a close friend of Franz Kafka and in 1969 wrote a book, "The Other Trial," about the private life of the writer.

Variously described as a political moralist, black humorist and semi-recluse, Canetti fled Vienna and the Nazis in 1938, three years after his major novel "Die Blendung" ("Auto da Fe") predicted the rise of National Socialism in its study of the [illegible] of fascism.

Sun Myung Moon indicted by IRS for false tax returns

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, founder of the Unification Church, was indicted Thursday on charges of filing false personal income tax returns.

A 12-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury in Manhattan said the Korean evangelist failed to report $112,000 he earned in interest and $50,000 he received in stock.

The indictment also accused Takeru Kamiyama, one of Moon's top aides, of helping the Unification Church leader file the false returns. "We are extremely distressed about the filing of this indictment because we believe the charges to be wholly without merit," said Charles Stillman, Moon's lawyer.

Judge was correct in rejecting plea

Once again, Fifth District Court Judge Daniel Meehl has taken action in the best interests of the citizens of Twin Falls.

Meehl, who thus far has shown to be the kind of fair but tough judge the judiciary needs, denied on Tuesday a convicted man's plea for a shorter prison sentence.

Earlier this year, the man received 30 years for pleading guilty to the robbery, aggravated assault and first-degree burglary of a 78-year-old woman. Charges of rape originally were filed in the case but later dropped in plea bargaining.

While another defendant in this case got a lighter sentence for turning state's evidence, Meehl also showed he doesn't intend to be bound by plea bargainings. The prosecution recommended 15 years for the defendant; Meehl meted out 30.

Was the punishment too harsh for the crime? Absolutely not. Should Meehl have reconsidered the sentence on the basis that this defendant now claims the other defendant lied during the court proceedings? Not simply on the basis of one man's word against the other's.

The crime was revolting. Two young men assault an elderly woman, beat her and steal her gold wedding band. That kind of crime can't be tolerated by society — no matter how remorseful one of the defendants now claims he is.

The fact that one defendant turned state's evidence and received a lighter sentence makes this case unusual, but it should not change the outcome. The fact that a defendant admits to guilt in hope of a lighter sentence does not make the crime any less repugnant.

Although the victim was spared the ignominy of a trial — if she even could have testified at all — the damage has been done.

The defendants admitted to certain crimes — there is no reason to believe they were coerced to do so — and agreed to the punishment handed down. There is no compelling reason to reconsider.

We have lots of them

A recent Gallup Poll showing that more than half of America's adults and teens lend a hand to someone in need indicates the volunteer spirit is alive and better than ever.

Although the poll's results may be surprising to some, the track record in the Magic Valley substantiates the findings. Take a look around at the number of agencies and services that are in existence largely because of volunteerism.

And there's no doubt that when it comes to major efforts — the YFCA campaign and the annual United Way drive are but two — volunteers really come forth when it counts.

Most volunteers prefer no recognition or rewards, but just the same, they deserve to be recognized for their contributions. This is a "good-neighbor" policy worth crowing about.

Renewed questions about rape

© The Boston Globe

BOSTON — This city is talking again about rape. The subject keeps coming up, rather like a sore we can't ignore and can't heal.

Because of two highly charged legal cases, we are arguing about sexual violence and sexual consent, about superficial change and ancient prejudices, about new laws and old attitudes.

The current controversy was ignited just when it should have been quelled: after two sentences of rape were handed down. In one case, three doctors were convicted by a jury of raping a nurse. In a second case, after plea-bargaining, five young men pleaded guilty to the rape of a 40-year-old woman.

The doctors who knew the nurse, and the young men who had met the woman at a bar, all maintained that the women were willing participants, not victims. The prosecution in both cases called it rape; the defense called it "consensual sexual adventure."

Despite the conviction of the doctors and the guilty plea of the five young men, it was lingering doubt about "consent" which cast the longest shadow over these cases.

Because of the doubt of colleagues, one of the doctors, out of jail on appeal, was given glowing letters of recommendation by superiors at the Harvard Medical School and even at the hospital where he and the nurse had worked. These letters — which never mentioned the rape convictions — smoothed his way into another hospital in Buffalo, N.Y.

Because of the doubt of a judge, all five of the young men who pleaded guilty to gang rape were given suspended sentences and $500 fines. These fines were to be paid at the rate of $5 a week.

Of course, we might never have noticed these addenda of doubt, these bizarre footnotes to the judicial process.

But a few weeks ago the doctor with the perfect resume was accused of rape and assault by two more women who had been patients. Then last week, the judge who accepted a plea-bargain of gang rape discovered that such a light sentence was probably illegal as well as unconscionable. An outraged public did not agree that it was enough, as he claimed, to "put the fear of God into these guys."

These two cases were enough to jog our minds into thinking about what has and hasn't changed, in the law, in society, in our minds.

In the law, rape is defined neatly, as intercourse without consent. But consent is much tougher to define. The best of the new rape laws no longer allow testimony about a woman's sexual history. Yet in many minds there are only two sorts of victims: the virginal and the questionable.

These same new laws use staircase sentences to differentiate between levels of crime. Yet in many minds there are only two levels of rape: the "real" rape by a stranger with a knife in a back alley, and the questionable rape by an acquaintance.

According to FBI statistics, one out of every three women in this country can expect to be sexually assaulted. Of those who are raped, 60 percent will be raped by someone they know. Yet, virtually every rape defense between people who are not strangers will hinge on whether or not he forced her, whether or not she "consented."

So there is this further psychological gap over the very issue of "consent," between those women who identify with the victims, and those men who identify with the accused.

Until recently few women would report a rape by someone they knew. The ex-wife, the hitchhiker, the woman who had met a man at a singles' bar, the college student who was unable to stop petting from turning into intercourse, silently blamed herself.

Now women are much more likely to know rape, to label it, accuse it. And men continue to talk about false accusations and about the "fine line" between consent and force.

The two cases here show the changes in attitudes and laws that have encouraged women to report rape, encouraged the prosecution of rape and even the convictions. They also show the power of traditional doubts:

The doubts about the woman who wasn't battered into submission by a stranger. The doubts about the women who said yes on Tuesday and "no" on Wednesday. The doubts about the woman who called it sex with one man and rape when he invited friends for a "party."

Rape trials often pit her word against his. The criteria for conviction are, and should be, stringent. But until we erase those pervasive cultural doubts about rape itself, we will read more about glowing recommendation letters for rapists and $5 a week penalties for those who plead guilty.

And we'll read more about the men who still believe that it is okay, normal, everyday, legal, to force a woman to "consent."

Protest rate hike

Editor, Times-News:

Once again Mountain Bell is asking permission to extract more money from their customers' pockets. This request should be protested by one and all until improved service is provided.

We experienced a case of trouble on our line which was reported on Oct. 9, 10, 12 and now on Oct. 13, 1981. Result — Mountain Bell may have someone out today by 6 p.m. Excuse — so-called holiday weekend. What a difference. When I was working for Ma Bell a case of trouble was cleared the day it was reported. Repair personnel were scheduled for every day of the week.

Who is to blame? Ma Bell, for trying to squeeze out every nickel of profit, or the overpaid employees who could care less for the subscribers paying their high salaries.

Kilpatrick too harsh

Editor, Times-News:

Kilpatrick hits Congress too severely for rejecting the Washington, D.C. repeal of laws against sex crimes.

We should not want Washington as a wide open town, no matter what the local residents will tolerate. After all, Washington, D.C. is the nation's capital. It is nothing if it does not have the huge payroll of the nation's lawmaking and executive staffs.

Congress acted responsibly and sensibly in slapping down that imprudent repeal act of the D.C. council.

Just passing through!

Why do we continue aiding Soviets economically?

© The Washington Post Company

WASHINGTON — One year ago Ronald Reagan was preparing for his debate with President Carter.

Today the Reagan administration seems to be debating itself. The proposed sale of AWACS aircraft to Saudi Arabia has catalyzed criticism of the administration's conduct of foreign policy, and especially its internal rivalries. But the administration's purposes and reputation are even more threatened by its policy, or non-policy, concerning trade with the Soviet Union.

The AWACS affair illustrates creakiness in the administration's policy process and misjudgment about institutional relations. The policy regarding trade with the Soviet Union is more injurious because it suggests intellectual laxness and policy confusion.

Since 1917, communist agriculture has produced bad harvests because of 64 consecutive years of unusually wet or dry (or both) weather. Now the Soviet Union has had three especially bad harvests. In the 1970s, the huge Soviet grain purchases — "the great grain robbery" — followed just two especially bad harvests. Today the Soviet Union is desperate, and American economic interests, with administration collaboration, are rushing to rescue it.

The Agriculture Department is just one agency whose behavior mocks the President's advocacy of prudent restraints on trade with the enemy. Many representatives of corporate America, with the aid of the Commerce and State Departments, are conscienceless advocates of selling computers, microcircuitry, sensors, engine and gas and oil technology.

At the Ottawa summit, the President expressed strong misgivings about construction of a Soviet Union-to-Western Europe gas pipeline, a potential instrument of economic dependency and political "Finlandization." But just days after the summit, the Commerce Department, almost certainly with the approval of senior White House aides, authorized the sale of pipe-laying equipment, ostensibly for other projects. (It will be fascinating to see how that "restriction" is enforced.)

The equipment is made in Peoria and Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) is pressing for permission for more sales. But they are probably pushing on an open door.

And they are pushing for another transaction. As International Harvester, another Illinois corporation, suffers economic reverses, it is proposing to sell (for considerably more than $200 million) all its technical competence — what is called "process know-how" — to the Soviet Union. Last year International Harvester sold the Soviets 12,000 combines. The factory it would help the Soviet Union build would produce 30,000 combines a year. The Commerce Department, which seems to think its mission is to ease the strains imposed on the Soviet economy by Soviet militarism, was recently set to approve the deal.

Fortunately, a few members of the administration are alert to dangers more grave than the danger that a corporation may miss a sale. They also know it is a common Soviet practice to use farm-machinery plants to produce weapons. They have found incontrovertible evidence that the industrial complex which the International Harvester plant would join, far from being benign, produces weapons and weapons-related products.

Some zealots in the Commerce Department responded by attempting to discredit the evidence. Now the Commerce Department has fallen back on the most familiar and boring bureaucratic ploy: It has suggested "restrictions" that will not really restrict. That is, it suggests proscribing activities that are not proposed.

The administration is in danger of being dismissed as a blusterer. Speaking about the destabilization of Central America, Secretary of State Haig pledged to deal with the problem "at the source," meaning Cuba. But Castro may have nothing to fear but the price of hotel rooms in Paris, where he may be heading for a visit. Far from being isolated, he may be prospering in the face of administration rhetoric, just as the Soviet Union is prospering from trade that is unimpeded by the administration's rhetorical anti-communism.

Many serious people who serve at the highest levels of government are frequently dismayed by the thinness of the information upon which unserious people are content to rest important government decisions. But the problem with the President's foreign policy, especially regarding trade, is not the result of a lack of information. The problem is a lack of definition.

To govern is to choose and, regarding trade, perhaps the President has not chosen, or has not made his choice known and effective. He must choose between abetting a dangerous and venal pursuit of profit, and his professed foreign policy values and goals. Surely the President should be troubled by the intellectual incoherence and political recklessness of asking American taxpayers to provide more than $1 trillion for increased defense, while corporate America is making money by strengthening the military capacity of the nation against which we need to be defended.

Army Corps: No more to say of fish hatchery

By BRUCE HAMMOND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There is nothing more to say about the alleged $2.4 million overpayment for the Crystal Springs fish hatchery, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers officials claim.

Corps officials in Washington, D.C. strongly denied Thursday any wrong-doing or error on their part during the purchase of Ken Ellis's hatchery, located five miles northeast of Buhl.

A General Accounting Office investigation criticized the Corps' $3.4 million purchase. An audit by the GAO indicated that only about $1 million should have been paid for the facility.

"We have no comments beyond what is included in the appendix of the (GAO) report," said Lu DuCharme, a Corps spokesman in Washington, D.C. "We are still reviewing the report, but at this time, it appears there will be nothing further to add to the comments that have already been made."

Although no other official comment is expected, DuCharme acknowledged that Corps officials will continue reviewing the GAO report for sometime.

"We are considering what the report says," DuCharme said.

In a letter included in the GAO investigation, William Gianelli, the assistant secretary of the Army, wrote, "We feel that the Corps of Engineers acted in good faith, followed the dictates of Congress, and fully substantiated its actions.

"The Corps' actions are supported by the best data available, whereas your report (the GAO's) reflects a cursory appraisal upon which the conclusions rely, in part, on opinion made by competitors in the food fish business," Gianelli wrote.

The controversy errupted in January when several Magic Valley trout producers claimed that the price offered Ellis for his fish farm greatly exceeded market values and violated the public interest. The sale has since been deemed irreversible by federal authorities, since all contracts were made final in March.

The report may, however, become an issue during future Corps budget hearings before Congress, according to Orei Dugger, a Corps spokesman at the Walla Walla, Wash., district office responsible for the Cyrstal Springs purchase. The GAO study reportedly is being taken seriously by congressional leaders, including members of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee, which ordered the investigation.

The Corps purchased Ellis's hatchery as a second steelhead rearing facility for the Lower Snake River fish mitigation program. This project was ordered by Congress to replace fish lost to four Idaho dams. Under the program, the Corps still is seeking a third steelhead hatchery site.

Soviets threaten to scuttle U.S. talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Thursday said next month's nuclear arms control talks could be scuttled unless the United States negotiates on removal of its forward-based missiles.

Articles in the newspapers Sovetskaya Rossia and New Times insisted the air and sea-based nuclear weapons are relevant to the talks opening in Geneva Nov. 30.

"All depends now on one thing — will Washington take a genuinely constructive approach," said the New Times article, which was distributed in advance of publication by the Tass news agency.

It said the United States wants "to confine the talks with the U.S.S.R. to medium-range ground-based missiles only, to exclude from them the relevant American forward-based nuclear means."

Government to crack down on debts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Private citizens have defaulted on over $25 billion in loans from the federal government and the administration is determined to make them pay up, an Office of Managment and Budget official said Thursday.

Deputy Director Edwin Harper told the House Ways and Means Committee that as of last year, there were over $200 billion worth of outstanding debts owed to the government, of which more than $25 billion were delinquent or in default.

In response to President Reagan's directive to step up debt collections, Harper said, "Twenty-four federal agencies, which account for over 95 percent of the debt owed the government, have already initiated comprehensive programs to improve their credit management and debt collection practices."

Harper said, "We will no longer tolerate those delinquent debtors who have the ability to repay their government debt, but refuse to do so." He warned the government will vigorously pursue legal action to recover those debts.

OPEC leaders discuss price meeting

By United Press International

Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries members are holding consultations on an emergency pricing meeting prior to their December summit in Abu Dhabi, the OPEC news agency reported Thursday.

Dr. Subroto, Indonesia's oil minister and current OPEC president, told OPECNA that such a meeting would take place only if unanimous consent is reached among the cartel's 13 members.

Subroto said no details were available on the site or timing of an emergency session, the news agency reported from OPEC headquarters in Vienna.

Freedom of Information change urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration Thursday proposed massive changes in the Freedom of Information Act, including provisions for excluding government files on terrorism, organized crime and foreign counterintelligence.

The Justice Department explained to a Senate judiciary subcommittee that hostile government intelligence agencies and extremists groups now use the act to try to uncover U.S. informants and learn government strategies.

To prevent this, the department said, Congress should allow the attorney general to declare the files exempt from mandatory disclosure under the act, while allowing access for historical research and other safe purposes.

Kimberly may get a trainer

By KATE LOPEZ
Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — Junior high and high school students in Kimberly soon may have access to an athletic trainer.

A presentation by Lois Kran, a teacher at Robert Stewart Junior High and a trainer at the Sage Gym in Twin Falls, sparked interest among school board members Wednesday evening.

"The purpose of an athletic trainer is to prevent injury," Kran said. "We coordinate our programs with the coaches and parents to ensure the safety of all children involved in sports."

Kran, a graduate of Boise State University, has a degree in physical education with an emphasis on sports medicine. She was employed as an athletic trainer at Meridian High School before coming to this area.

"I've seen training programs in action," Kran said. "Aside from preventing injuries, we can apply immediate first aid to individuals injured during a sporting event. Many times, coaches can't provide this service due to lack of time or detailed training.

"We then design a reconditioning program for the injured student to allow them to return to their specific sports as quickly as possible."

A decision to employ Kran as athletic trainer will be made after a discussion with the athletic department and a budget evaluation.

Burton Ave. bus wins OK

BURLEY — The Cassia County School District will begin busing students who live along Burton Avenue.

Superintendent Norman Hurst told the school board Wednesday that 70 to 80 Burton Avenue children, who normally walk to school, now will be transported by buses. Hurst said that many parents felt the street, which has heavy traffic, posed a danger to the children.

The city, he said, laid gravel paths along the street, but it could not afford to build sidewalks and curbs.

"We felt like there should be more done," Hurst said. "So we started transporting these students to alleviate any danger to them."

In other action at the meeting:

• Design West of Boise, which was hired a month ago to advise the district on its building program, is completing a report on the existing buildings in the district, Hurst said. In addition, representatives from the Idaho Department of Education are evaluating the educational adequacy of the buildings.

• Hurst reported to the board on curriculum plans and other goals for the district this year. He said that a program for the gifted and talented, and more use of minicomputers in teaching are being evaluated.

Man convicted of battery

TWIN FALLS — A 39-year-old Montana man has been convicted in 5th District Magistrate Court on charges of battery and disturbing the peace.

A six-member jury found Duane Edward Hanson of Miles, Mont., guilty Tuesday on those two misdemeanor charges. The jury found the defendant not guilty on a third misdemeanor charge, trespassing.

The three charges resulted from an Aug. 17 altercation at Sambo's restaurant, 180 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. According to the charges, Hanson was disorderly and struck Gordon Annis, a security guard at the restaurant.

He pleaded not guilty to the charges on Aug. 25.

Hanson has been released on his own recognizance, pending sentencing. Each charge carries a penalty of up to six months in jail and/or $300 in fines.

Beans Inc. case arson trial nears

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

SALT LAKE CITY — The men accused of setting the 1979 Beans Inc. warehouse fire in Filer were arraigned on arson charges Wednesday in Salt Lake County Circuit Court.

The court appearance of Jim Woods of Salinas, Calif., and Martin Taylor of Madera, Calif., apparently has ended the two men's fight against extradition to Utah.

Woods, the owner of Commodity Marketing Corp. the parent firm of the defunct Filer bean warehousing operation, and Taylor, a business associate, have been charged with arson with intent to defraud and insurance fraud.

A preliminary hearing has been scheduled for Dec. 10.

Following the arraignment, Woods and Taylor were released without bond.

The charges, filed by the Salt Lake County Attorney's Office, stem from the July 30, 1979, fire that destroyed one of the Filer operation's warehouses.

Woods and Taylor previously had challenged the Utah prosecutors' jurisdiction in a case involving a fire in Idaho. Utah prosecutors based their jurisdiction in the case on the fact that the insurance adjuster, as well as the insurance companies involved, operated from offices in Salt Lake City.

Last month, California Gov. Jerry Brown signed a warrant ordering Woods and Taylor to appear in Salt Lake City. But that appearance was to have been delayed until the two defendants appeared at a extradition hearing in California, scheduled for next week.

In a story published Thursday, the Salinas Daily Californian quoted Woods's lawyer, Lawrence Biegel of Salinas, as saying the two defendants appeared in the Salt Lake courtroom of their own volition.

The arraignment came on the same day that retired Fifth District Court Judge James Cunningham denied two requests for partial summary judgments in a civil suit against Beans Inc.

But that apparently won't be the last time both the criminal and civil aspects of the case are conducted simultaneously.

Unless the court schedules are changed, Woods and Taylor will appear at their preliminary hearing on the same day that lawyers representing Woods in the civil action appear in a Fifth District Court fact-finding session.

Cunningham has scheduled that hearing for Dec. 10.

Biegel attended Wednesday's hearing in Twin Falls, and according to reports published in California, he indicated that negotiations to settle the 25-month-old lawsuit are underway.

According to Twin Falls lawyer Mark Stubbs, who is representing the National Farmers Organization in the lawsuit, settlement negotiations are in an exploratory stage.

"We told them, by prior authority, that we certainly could consider a settlement offer, and even if it was less than 100 cents on the dollar, we would take it to our members," Stubbs said. "That doesn't mean they (the farmers) would accept it. It just means we would offer to present it."

Stubbs said the insurance companies involved in the case may investigate Woods's financial situation in order to verify whether the defendant is in a position to make a settlement offer.

"It's a matter of honesty. If he's coming from an honest position, then we'll consider his offer," Stubbs said.

2 die in auto wrecks

BURLEY — Two men were killed in separate car-truck accidents in Cassia County Wednesday night.

At 7:45, Melvin E. Stark, 57, of Heyburn, was pronounced dead at the scene after his car collided head-on with a semitrailer.

Stark was driving in the wrong lane on the Burley-Heyburn Bridge when the accident happened, according to the Idaho State Police.

The truck, owned by Circle A Construction Co., 212 Highland Ave., Twin Falls, was driven by Clyde Wood, 26, 158 Moreland Ave., Twin Falls. Wood was treated and released at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

The second accident occured about midnight and took the life of a passenger in one of the two vehicles involved.

Burley police gave this account of the accident:

Lavern Hovermale, 26, of Burley, came up behind a stopped semitrailer, and for reasons unknown at this time, drove his car into the rear of the truck.

Hovermale's passenger, Rich Shaddy, 21, 600 S. 50 E., Burley, was thrown from the car. He was pronounced dead at the scene from massive head injuries.

Hovermale, who fractured his knee, was reported in stable condition at Cassia Memorial Hospital Thursday evening.

The truck, owned by the Simplot Livestock Co. of Norland, was driven by Steven Hawker, 27, of Rupert, who had stopped on Highland Avenue at Main Street for a traffic light. Hawker was not injured.

No skid marks were found at the scene, and police are investigating the accident. Charges are pending.

Funding for alternate energy projects in valley proposed

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Eight alternative energy projects in the Magic Valley have been proposed for funding through public and private grants, area officials were told Thursday.

A report prepared by the Region IV Development Association staff outlines the projects, which are designed to operate on renewable energy sources.

Regional officials, meeting as the association's board of directors, were informed of the report at their regular monthly session. No further action was taken.

According to Tom Fleming, the association's executive director, the report was prepared as part of an assessment of the region's renewable energy alternatives.

The report, which has been forwarded to potential funding sources, lists the following proposals:

• Operating geothermal wells at the College of Southern Idaho. The college now operates two such wells on campus.

• Locating geothermal wells at three hot springs near Fairfield. The project is co-sponsored by Camas County and the city of Fairfield.

• Constructing a powerhouse on a public drinking water line at Alpheus Creek. Twin Falls city officials presently are studying the feasibility of such a project.

• Generating power through the use of effluent that enters the Twin Falls waste water treatment plant in the Snake River Canyon. City officials also are conducting a feasibility study of this proposal.

• Utilizing Indian Creek for hydroelectric generation. This project is under consideration by Hailey city officials.

• Operating a steam-producing solid waste incinerator near Heyburn. The project, anticipated to consume 4,000 pounds of refuge per day, is sponsored by Cassia County and the city of Burley. Steam produced by the plant could be sold to the nearby Simplot food processing operation, or it could be used for electrical generation.

• Constructing a similar plant east of Gooding. Gooding and Lincoln counties jointly have sponsored feasibility and engineering studies for the project.

• Operating a dairy near Burley that would rely on anaerobic digesters — micro-organisms able to live in oxygen-free environments — to convert the 106,360 pounds of manure accumulated daily into electricity. Larry Olson of Burley has proposed the project.

In other matters:

• The board gave a favorable recommendation to a request by th Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind for $131,435 in federal and state grants.

The school is seeking the funds for such programs as job training, remedial reading and staff training.

• The board tabled making a recommendation on a request from the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare for a $117,454 federal grant.

According to information provided to the board, the grant would be used for statewide mental health programs.

Two arrested on marijuana charges

TWIN FALLS — A six-week investigation by Twin Falls police and state undercover narcotics agents has resulted in the arrest of a Twin Falls man and woman, with more arrests expected.

Dee Micheli Whitaker, 542 Jackson St., and Larry E. Ek, 426 Fifth St. W., were arrested Thursday on charges of delivery of a controlled substance. They were released on their own recognizance.

According to police, the investigaton involved the growing and distribution of marijuana.

Several other arrest warrants have been issued as a result of the investigation, police said.

Police probe armed robbery attempt

TWIN FALLS — Police are investigating an unsuccessful armed robbery attempt against a Twin Falls woman Thursday afternoon.

According to police, the woman, whose name the police refused to release, was forced into her van, which was parked in the Warehouse 222 parking lot, 222 Blue Lakes Blvd. N., by a man brandishing a long-barreled handgun at about 2:45 p.m.

A struggle insued in the van, and the assailant reportedly struck the woman with his fist, then fled on foot.

The woman was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. She was not injured seriously, a detective said, but she was extremely "shook-up," making it difficult for police to obtain more than sketchy details of the incident.

Milk producers attack inspection fees

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A plan to increase the service fees charged by most of the state's seven district health departments, while standardizing the system statewide, met stiff resistance from milk producers and processors at a hearing Thursday night in Twin Falls.

The main complaint voiced by the dairymen was that the fee increases are not equitable between milk-program inspections and food-establishment inspections. Milk producers would pay $100 per year under the proposal, and milk processors would pay $250 per year. However, food-service establishments would be charged a $25 fee.

"The Department of Health and Welfare intends to gouge the grade-A producers," said Michael Quesnell of Harvey Quesnell Ranches of Twin Falls. "Other food establishments will pay 10 percent of that."

Quesnell suggested that a fair yearly fee for the producers, who already pay an additional $120 minimum for laboratory tests each year, would be $35 for inspections.

Ormond Smith of Smith's Home Delivery Dairy in Buhl said the increased fees would contribute to the excessive burdens on small businesses.

He said that under the proposed fee schedule, dairies having one or two producers — farmers who provide them with milk — would pay as much as those with 65 or more producers.

"Small processors pay the same as the big processors — $250 in addition to other fees," he said. "Small businesses are facing bankruptcy because they are taking on more restrictions."

Gerald Hurst, the director of the South Central District Health Department, explained early in the meeting that funding cuts on both the state and federal level have reduced the revenues of the district health units significantly. The fees, he said, would be a way of generating local revenue.

Alan Biermann, the environmental director for the district office, said that it cost $34,000 last year for his office to inspect the 100 area milk producers, or about $300 per dairy farm.

School mulls policy manual

CASTLEFORD — The school board discussed the development of a policy manual Tuesday night for Castleford schools.

According to Superintendent Edward Schenk, the manual would explain all district policies, including the master contract, reduction in positions, discipline, sick leave and leave of absence, and it would be available to all district employees. The manual would be an updating of existing board policies, Schenk said.

The scheduling of junior-high athletics also was discussed at the meeting. Schenk said the board is trying to avoid a possible problem of students missing too much school to attend sports events.

"We are trying to schedule games with other schools that won't take as much time out of students' classes," he said.

Coaches and principals were encouraged to schedule games on Saturdays if possible, or at times that would avoid the potential problem.

The board opened bids on coal and oil supplies for heating. The low bidder for coal was Matlock Coal Co., 502 Shoshone St., Twin Falls, at $65 per ton, while the low bidder for oil was Harold's United Service, 215 F. Maple, Castleford, at $1.10 per gallon.

Jury declares Filer woman guilty of writing bad check to grocery

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It took a jury of seven women and five men nearly two hours Thursday to find a 29-year-old Filer woman guilty of passing a bad check.

The verdict means Mary Jean Hebner could be sentenced to spend up to three years in prison and pay a maximum fine of $5,000.

Hebner was released on her own recognizance, pending sentencing. No date for sentencing was set.

Contacted later, Hebner's lawyer, Mike Walz, the Twin Falls County public defender, said he was studying grounds on which to appeal the conviction to the Idaho Supreme Court.

"It's our current intention to appeal the case," Walz said. He declined to say what the grounds for appeal may be, however.

Hebner's two-day Fifth District Court trial came down to a question of her intentions when she cashed a $100 check at Smith's Food King, 1913 Addison Ave. E., on Nov. 24, 1980. The check later was returned for insufficient funds.

Walz and Harry DeHann, the Twin Falls County prosecutor, squared off on the issue of intent in their closing arguments.

That issue is important because Idaho law requires proof of intent to defraud in order to convict a defendant on a bad check charge.

Conceding that his client did issue the check, Walz contended that DeHaan had failed to prove that the woman intended to defraud the grocery store.

He said the defense had provided evidence that Hebner had attempted to deposit funds in her checking account on Dec. 8, but bank officials refused to deposit the funds.

Walz also challenged the prosecution's case by saying that his client had given the grocery store her name and address when she presented the check. Usually, persons who attempt to defraud through bad checks do not give their true names and addresses, he said.

"If she intended to defraud, she sure did a bad job of it," Walz said.

But DeHaan said the prosecution had presented evidence that the defendant had engaged in a pattern of passing bad checks.

Evidence submitted at the trial showed that 27 checks issued by Hebner had been returned for insufficient funds, DeHaan said. And 12 overdraft notices had been mailed to the defendant by the time of the alleged incident, he said.

"You can't open someone's brain and read what she was thinking," DeHaan acknowledged. But the pattern established a presumption of intent to defraud, he said.

Murtaugh OKs hook-up fees

MURTAUGH — A unanimous decision to increase the fee for water and sewer connections in Murtaugh proves that inflation is affecting even the smallest of American towns.

Wednesday night, City Council raised the fee from $500 to $500 plus the cost of any needed street repair and backhoe work. A set fee for the backhoe and street repair work has not been established.

In other action:

• Council decided to impose a $5 fee on all delinquent water bills. There is a 90-day grace period before the bills are delinquent.

• Carl Poupin, the city constable, told council the county has requested that all houses in Murtaugh be numbered. Action will be taken soon to comply with the request.

Dear Abby

'Born Free' bird calls for replacement by son's visitor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: While I was away from home, a young woman came into my home as a guest of my son. This young woman took "Freddy," my precious parakeet, out of his cage, opened the front door and threw him out, saying he was "born free."

Abby, I had had Freddy for five years and I had grown to love him very much. It has been three weeks since this incident occurred and now I have given up all hope of ever seeing my sweet bird again.

I pray that you will print this so that young woman will realize the sorrow she has caused.

— J.M.T., FOSTER CITY, MICH.

DEAR J.M.T.: "Realizing the sorrow she has caused" is hardly adequate restitution for having robbed you of your beloved pet. That cruel and thoughtless young woman owes you a replacement for Freddy. And since it was your son who brought her into your home, he should assume some responsibility for the loss of your pet.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old virgin (girl) who is tired of hearing the statistic: "Only three out of every 10 teens under the age of 18 are virgins."

I have been going steady with my boyfriend for two years. We plan to marry as virgins when we finish college. Our relationship is very strong and we don't feel that sex would make it any stronger at this time. I find it hard to believe that our values are not shared by more teens.

My question to you, Abby, is: How accurate do you think these statistics are? With so much peer pressure and so much stress on sex today, I'll bet there are a lot of teens who are still virgins, but they wouldn't dare admit it.

I question that there is really a valid way to get accurate statistics. I would appreciate your opinion.

— WAITING FOR MARRIAGE

DEAR WAITING: What you say makes sense, but much depends on how the statistics were gathered. In a written questionnaire where participants are not required to identify themselves, the chances for 100 percent honesty are almost a certainty. But in a face-to-face confrontation, that's something else again.

DEAR ABBY: I'm confused. When does one use "further" as opposed to "farther"? I never know for sure which word to use. Thanks.

— MURRAY-IN-MADISON

DEAR MURRAY: When referring to physical distance, use "farther." Use "further" for everything else. The late Ted Bernstein, in "The Careful Writer," wrote: "Fifty years hence copy editors probably won't have to worry about this distinction because it looks as if 'farther' is going to be mowed down by the scythe of Old Further Time."

Dr. Lamb

Powerful drug, valium addicting

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
© Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB: I need some answers about Valium, one of the most widely prescribed drugs today. I need to know the time element involved with withdrawal from this drug. My mother, age 65, has been consuming Valium for 12 to 15 years. She has been on withdrawal therapy for six months but she is not that much better. Her general health is good.

She is playing games with us, using her past addiction as an excuse for not cleaning house, shopping, eating, cooking, attending church or just general living. Enough is enough. We are beginning to think she is still popping Valium here and there. We can't tolerate her addiction much longer. We need help. She won't help herself.

DEAR READER: Under the best circumstances in a young, healthy adult about half of the Valium will be eliminated in about one-and-a-half days. In older people or those who have liver disease it may take two to five times as long. Withdrawal symptoms from the abrupt stopping of Valium and related drugs may not occur until a week later.

Putting all the variabilities together you could expect that there might be some Valium still in the body as long as three weeks after stopping it. Its slow elimination is dependent upon the action of the liver to convert it to other compounds. That is also why a chronic long-term use of even small doses on a regular basis permits it to accumulate and may cause undesirable reactions in some people.

Valium, like many other drugs, interacts with other tranquilizers and sedatives, also alcohol. You'll be interested in reading about these relationships in The Health Letter, number 12-2, Sedatives, Hypnotics and Tranquilizers: The Pill Problem, which I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Your mother's behavior, whether it is or is not related to her popping pills on the sly, requires a professional evaluation. She may have a depression and need professional help. I would do my best to get her to a psychiatrist who can properly diagnose her problem and help her. You will all feel better.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My granddaughter is enrolled in a gymnastic course. The instructor has complete control of the students and advises them to eat a diet of only food without artificial preservatives and no sugar at all. She is only 12 but won't this interfere with her hormone function and body function? I do not agree with this theory. I believe in a well-rounded diet. I would appreciate your comments.

DEAR READER: You can have a diet that does not contain any sugar or artificial preservatives and it can still be a balanced healthy diet. Sugar contains glucose and fructose. These same carbohydrates are found in fresh fruit and vegetables. Or even in cereal. They are the basic carbohydrates in all our carbohydrate foods (except milk which is glucose and galactose). In general I do think that people do better getting their carbohydrates from cereals, fruit and vegetables rather than from sweets and sugar.

Your granddaughter should be sure to get enough calories to support her normal growth and development but she can get those calories from foods that do not contain sugar.

Market gains after late rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored their first gain in five sessions Thursday with the aid of some bargain hunting and fresh indications that interest rates are subsiding a bit.

Trading was only moderate, however, indicating investors still were concerned about disappointing third-quarter earnings and prospects of a large federal budget deficit.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue stocks, which plunged 27.49 points the previous four sessions, including 14.93 Wednesday, climbed 5.61 points to 856.26 with much of the gain coming in the afternoon.

The broader-based New York Stock Exchange index added 0.42 to 69.39 and the price of an average share increased 18 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 0.91 to 119.71. Advances edged declines, 772-685 among the 1,857 issues traded.

But Big Board volume totaled only 42,830,000 shares compared with 50,260,000 traded, indicating many investors still were confused and uncertain about the future.

Republican leaders have said President Reagan will be lucky to get $5 billion of the additional $13 billion in budget cuts he has requested. If that's true, the budget deficit could soar and increase government borrowing needs.

Nevertheless, Sidney Lurie, vice president at Josephthal & Co., thinks the "worst is over. You have retraced about half of the early October rally and now the market is coming back amid positive signs that interest rates are dropping."

Chase Manhattan and U.S. Trust, which stunned Wall Street by boosting their broker-loan rates a full point late Wednesday, slashed them three-quarters of a point Thursday as bank borrowing costs declined.

And Chase, which reported sharply higher earnings, joined the rest of the nation's banks in reducing its prime lending rate to 18 percent. Experts generally expect short-term rates to decline as the economy slows.

Many investors were waiting for the Federal Reserve to report late Friday on the nation's money supply, which has been growing in some categories at levels below Fed targets. The Fed has maintained tight credit to fight inflation.

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 49,335,560 shares compared with 46,966,140 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index rose 2.38 to 308.33 and the price of a share added 11 cents.

M.A.S.H.

This is last season for Loretta Swit

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK — There are three things that cannot be expected of Loretta Swit — laughter at an ethnic joke, "garbage" television, and continuation past the upcoming season of her "Hotlips Houlihan" role on "M-A-S-H."

And if you think the Nielsen-conquering CBS showcase about horseplay, pain and laughter during the Korean War can't survive without nurse Houlihan, she won't argue.

"This is the last of my contract year, so I don't anticipate going back," she said in New York where she was promoting a new role for CBS. "It just might also be the end of 'M-A-S-H.' I know we have discussed that possibility and if it does end, we'll end with a show that declares peace and that will be wonderful."

If "M-A-S-H" does end on a note of peace at the end of its 10th season, it will quit a winner. Despite a start paralleling that of NBC's critically acclaimed but Nielsen-scorned "Hill Street Blues," the Korean tragi-comedy seldom has been out of the ratings war's top 10 in recent years.

But Miss Swit, who found stardom as a tough, hot-tempered foil for Alan Alda's chauvinistic "Hawkeye," said a decade is enough. She hinted she might not even see the show through its 1981-82 season.

"If I leave before the series ends, I don't know what their plans would be," she said. "Maybe I would just go home. I don't know. We haven't really discussed it. It's a kind of consummation devoutly to be wished."

Right now, she is more interested in her role as a lady cop in the CBS movie for television "Cagney and Lacey." It is, she said, a movie with a message.

"It's about two police women in non-traditional roles who are capable and interesting and fine and intelligent," she said. "They're the first two lady detectives in the precinct and we see what that involves — sexism, racism. They're made to feel, as my partner says in the course of the film, like lady lepers."

The partner is Tyne Daly, whose character is married to a macho man who is out of work and must stay home and rear children while his wife straps on a gun and becomes the breadwinner every day.

"She's having sexual problems as a result," said Miss Swit, "and she's getting pretty grumpy about it. I'm her best friend and I get into the squad car one morning and she's really in a bad mood and I look at her and I say, 'Did Harvey have another headache?'

"Well, you're smiling, because it's funny. But it's not, because it's painful as well."

Valley of the Dolls

Surely a blockbuster

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK — When Irving Mansfield puts the television version of his late wife's all-time best-seller up on the screen for CBS Monday and Tuesday nights, he'll be bucking some formidable competition — Monday Night Football, the World Series and the Coalition for Better Television.

But if Jacqueline Susann's "Valley of the Dolls" does for the Nielsens what it did for the publishing industry when she wrote it back in the 1960s, even those three spoilers may not prevail against it.

For Mansfield, it's more than a movie. It's a labor of love undimmed by the cancer death in 1974 of his wife of 31 years.

To Mansfield, word that the Rev. Donald Wildmon's Coalition for Better Television has "Valley of the Dolls" at the top of its boycott hit list is a personal affront.

"I'm proud of that," he grated. "Please say that I'm proud of that."

Mansfield — whose own television production credits would almost fill one of his late wife's books — is as fierce in her defense in death as he was when she lived.

"My wife was never a favorite of the critics — of the high-class, so-called intelligencia magazines," he said, "and there was a very good reason for that. Whenever you're a commercial success, you're always considered an artistic failure.

"But the worst thing in the world is to have

Pvt. Benjamin (right) drives Capt. Lewis (Eileen Brennan) into a pool

Private Benjamin

Emmy Award-winner Brennan surprised by show's hit status

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — Eileen Brennan was probably more surprised than anyone else when her new series, "Private Benjamin," became an instant hit.

Surprised and delighted.

The vivacious redhead was nominated for best supporting actress this year for her performance as the iron-panted Capt. Doreen Lewis in the movie version of "Private Benjamin" which starred Goldie Hawn in the title role.

It would seem difficult for Eileen, who was clearly a supporting actress in the film, to be expected to carry the TV show.

But "Private Benjamin" (on CBS Mondays) came on like a panzer division late in the season to land in the top five of the Nielsen ratings.

While Eileen is accustomed to higher planes of acting — in such films as "The Last Picture Show," "The Sting," "Hustle," "Scarecrow" and "FM," she is not above playing broad comedy on the tube.

What pleases Eileen most about starring in a weekly situation comedy is that the assignment allows her to remain in Hollywood. It's important to the actress now to spend as much time as she can at home.

She is the divorced mother of Pat, 8, and Sam, 9, and believes the youngsters need her attention and guidance for the next several years. Features and TV films mean out-of-town locations more often than not.

"Children should have their mother around during the formative years," Eileen said. "They are more important to me than my career, so it's a matter of putting priorities in their proper prospective."

Eileen is no stranger to the problems and advantage of working in sitcoms. She appeared in 13 episodes of "All That Glitters," and starred in "A New Kind of Family" and the ill-fated "13 Queens Boulevard."

"A weekly series here in Hollywood is the best of all worlds for me at this time of my life," she said.

"We'll be doing the show six or seven months a year, leaving me free to work in a movie, a play or a TV film in the off-season. During the summer, while the kids are on vacation, I can take them with me on locations."

Eileen was surprised at the instant acceptance of "Private Benjamin" because she wasn't as pleased with the first couple of shows as she had hoped.

But she does have a ready explanation for its popularity.

"We had the greatest pilot in the world — the movie," she said, laughing. "The picture was a tremendous hit. People tuned in to see the same characters — women in the army — going at it again. Audiences loved that picture.

"CBS was smart in putting us on the air at 8 o'clock. Kids as well as adults were able to tune in, and they liked what they saw, especially little girls who like to see comedic stories about women.

"I'm gratified we've made a successful transition from the movie to the tube. I don't believe many hit movies can repeat their success in a television series. In my opinion it probably helps a series to have a title that is already familiar to the public.

"The best example, of course, is 'M-A-S-H.' But some others, like 'Breaking Away,' 'Foul Play,' 'Cruising' and 'Paper Chase' just didn't make it and I'll bet there are dozens of others.

"'Private Benjamin' has the advantage of being timely. And I'm not sure it wouldn't have been a hit if it had never been a movie.

"I realize the movie preconditioned viewers to tune in. But if the show hadn't had merit, they wouldn't have tuned in again. Now, I think it's carrying its own weight although we still have a lot of work to do on it."

Eileen has a secondary explanation for the show's success, the character of Capt. Lewis, a crazy of the first order who epitomizes the hard-line army officer who lives by the book.

"The character has to be played outrageously, otherwise she comes off mean," Eileen said. "She's a wonderful eccentric and everybody has a quirk of two of eccentricity about them.

"Add the fact that she's man-crazy and you've got a pretty funny lady on your hands. I mean, how many women are called 'Bullets' by their boyfriends?

"I've known a woman like the captain, a single-minded disciplinarian. Captain Lewis treads a very tight rope. She's more sympathetic in the series than she was in the movie and there are more facets to her personality.

"But the important element of 'Private Benjamin' is that the series allows me to be an attentive mother and a working actress at one and the same time."

Jessica Novak

Ambitious reporter stars in spotlight on journalism

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD — The romance of newspapers can be traced back to the penny papers of the colonies up through the competitive tabloids and the era of yellow journalism to "All The President's Men."

Journalists earned a reputation, deservedly or not, as two-fisted drinkers, womanizers, swaggering guys with press cards in their hats and cigarettes hanging out of the sides of their mouths.

They were immortalized in countless scores of movies wherein the city editor summoned his ace reporter, assigned him to a story and beseeched him to come back with a scoop.

Subsequently Scoop Scarsdale, or whoever, would become embroiled personally in the story which inevitably involved an imperiled beautiful young woman.

After much drinking and derring-do, old Scoop foiled the villain, won fair lady's heart and returned to the Daily Blat with an exclusive.

Following the tried and true script, the jubilant managing editor would rip the copy from Scoop's faithful Woodstock typewriter, pick up the telephone to the press room and bellow, "Tear out page one! We've scooped them again."

Almost all of the newspaper movies of old were, of course, about as accurate a portrayal of journalism as "Dukes of Hazzard" is of farm life in the South.

There were a few exceptions, among them Charles MacArthur's and Ben Hecht's "The Front Page," first made in 1930 with Pat O'Brien as the fast-talking reporter and Adolphe Menjou as his scheming editor.

It was remade and retitled "His Girl Friday" as a 1940 comedy with Cary Grant and Rosalind Russell. "The Front Page" was made again in 1974 with Jack Lemmon as the reporter and Walter Matthau as the editor.

The last great newspaper movie was "All The President's Men" with Dustin Hoffman and Robert Redford playing the Washington Post investigative reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward.

Television's "Lou Grant" provides a reasonably sophisticated version of a modern newspaper operation with understandable shortcomings, including a limited reportorial

M.A.S.H.

Miss Swit said the film will be something of "a back door pilot" which she ardently hopes will become a regular series. Nothing less will do.

"'M-A-S-H' is a very hard act to follow," she said. "I would certainly not like to do anything less in depth or meaning. I would do a flying nun-or-twitch-my-nose-and-make something disappear. It will be difficult to find something as meaningful as 'M.A.S.H.'"

What is not difficult to find, in Miss Swit's estimation, is "garbage."

"I look around us on television and see how much garbage is succeeding as well (as 'M-A-S-H'), " she said. "I can't account for the success of the quality shows in the same medium."

But she blames the viewers themselves for turning the tube into a landfill dump.

"If the audience continues to tune in and give numbers to bad stuff, what are the networks to think?" she said. "If this is selling, one must assume this is what they want. Yet I insist the audience doesn't know its power out there. They can demand better quality."

Miss Swit, a blue-eyed lady of Polish extraction, displays a Houlihan-style temper when it comes to Polish jokes. Or Irish jokes, or Jewish jokes or any other jokes that turn on a racial or a cultural hinge.

"I loathe ethnic humor," she bristled. "I refuse to laugh at it. I don't think it's funny. I don't want a black child to hear a joke that insinuates his race is dirty or ill-bred or dumb.

"That bothers me because that's a young mind being affected. Humor is contagious and infectious and it should be if it's healthy humor. But I think ethnic humor is sick and bad."

None of which necessarily makes Miss Swit an activist feminist or a civil rights campaigner. She has another passion.

"I'm a championship animal rights person," she said. "I belong to eight humane organizations and I sit on the board of directors of four of them. . . I seem to have chosen this one thing — or it has chosen me."

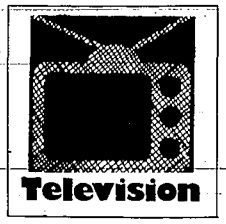

Anyone who loves animals and can successfully fight garbage, bad jokes and stereotypes in prime time television deserves to be chosen.

Let the Nielsen clan take note.

Begins broadcasting Sunday

KTRV to give area a new channel

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
Times-News writer

NAMPA — Idaho's only independent, and newest, television station is a family-owned operation headed by a former Memphis broadcasting executive.

KTRV, Channel 12, of Nampa, will begin broacasting programs on Sunday, Susu Mahood, the station's promotion manager, says the station will emphasize family programming.

Because of a tall broadcasting tower, homes in most of The Times-News circulation area will be able to receive the station, according to station officials, giving non-cable subscribers an additional station. KTRV is listed in The Times-News TV listings as (12).

The new station's principal owners are newly arrived Boise residents Cary D. Jones, his mother, Alice Stanton Serrao and her husband, John A. Serrao. The station does business as Peyton Broadcasting, Ltd.

KTRV will offer programs similar to those broadcast on network stations, but with a major difference in scheduling, KTRV, Mahood says, plans to "counter-program."

For example, when network affiliates telecast early evening and late evening news, KTRV will offer entertainment programs. And when network stations air children's programs on Saturday mornings, the new Nampa station will present adult broadcasts.

Mahood says KTRV has purchased a number of syndicated "off-network" programs, ranging from "Little House on the Prairie" to "Hogan's Heroes." The station has a movie library featuring more than 1,000 titles, and plans to broadcast a major movie daily at 8 p.m. National and international news will be aired on weekdays.

KTRV's overall programming philosophy calls for family-oriented broadcasts.

"We have found that parents are far more relaxed and willing to allow the younger members of the family into the viewing room if they can be sure that the program content is acceptable by general family standards," says Gail Blanchard-Jones, director of programming.

Programs will emanate from KTRV's newly built studios on Sixth Street in Nampa. Atop the new facilities are two stations enabling KTRV to receive satellite-fed programs. KTRV's transmitter on Deer Point Mountain 4,200 feet above the Treasure Valley is alongside those of channels 2, 4, 6 and 7.

Jones is the station manager and senior vice-president of Peyton Broadcasting. John Serrao is the president and general manager of KTRV, and is a 33-year veteran of the television industry. He joined KTRV after working in Memphis, Tenn., where he was vice-president and general manager of WPTY.

Alice Stanton Serrao is Peyton Broadcasting's principal stockholder. The company's limited partners are in Tennessee, California and New York.

Sales of video games still soaring

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sales of video games are expected to exceed $1 billion by 1985, according to an industry source.

Because of the increased popularity of video and home computer games, cartridge sales of new games are doubling each year, says Jim Levy, president of a cartridge company (Activision).

At present Americans have installed more than 5 million systems in their homes, Levy said, and the market is growing by 50 percent a year in the United States and an even greater rate in foreign countries. However, he pointed out, the industry does have problems.

"The industry has had a continuing struggle with being out of stock of the popular cartridges, the lack of cross-compatibility of hardware systems and uncertainty among retailers about how to display and merchandise game cartridges," Levy said.

NEW YORK — Remember Phoebe Snow's "No Regrets"? Now that was a torch song, and an American pop standard from Tin Pan Alley.

The 1980s have seen the resurgence of pop-jazz singers, from Frank Sinatra to Sarah Vaughan, who do the American pop standard repertoire.

Younger singers are becoming attracted to this rich repertoire, too — even rock singers. The two singers reviewed here are both young, but one comes out of intimate jazz rooms and cabarets, while the other has been a rock superstar for a decade.

What they share is a love of American pop standards and a commitment to do them straight, not as rock vehicles or jazz pyrotechnics.

Carly Simon has a recognition factor that could bring the songs she does to the attention of a younger generation. Susannah McCorkle is only known to a few connoisseurs, but she's just too good to remain a secret much longer.

Records Music

"Torch"
Carly Simon (Warner Bros. Records)

"The best definition of torch music I can think of," says Carly Simon, "is the songs of anyone — man or woman who is carrying a torch: it's music of lost love. It's that feeling I wanted to get across on this album."

Considering her glamorous image (one that works at cross-purposes with the vulnerability of the classic torch singer) and assertive voice, Simon does a fine job here, although some of the most familiar standards suffer from a lack of pliancy in her approach and from comparisons with earlier, definitive versions.

Only five of the songs are bona fide pop standards, and of them Simon only manages to emotionally inhabit two: "Spring Is Here" and "I Get Along Without You Very Well."

She is less convincing on "I've Got It Bad and That Ain't Good" and "I'll Be Around." She just seems too strong a woman for the sentiments involved. "Body and Soul" is saved from a rather academic reading by Phil Woods' lovely alto sax solo.

Simon is in her element on the old rhythm and blues ballad, "Hurt," and surprisingly fine on two songs written with Nicholas Holmes in a modern torch vein. There's also a venture into hip jazz balladry, "Pretty Strange." And Stephen Sondheim's latest, "Not a Day Goes By," should be a hit for Carly: it fits her like a glove.

"Over the Rainbow: The Songs of E. Y. 'Yip' Harburg"
Susannah McCorkle (Inner City Records)

Working with a piano-bass-drums trio of marvelous sensitivity, McCorkle invests the words of the lyricist most famous for "Wizard of Oz" and "Finian's Rainbow" with nuances of understanding that approach epiphanies.

"Old Devil Moon" will never sound the same again after hearing McCorkle's crepuscular transformation of it into a languid torch song. She drapes her voice over the words as if under the spell herself and only barely able to move.

And that's only the beginning. There are 12 more songs on this generous album, all of them gems, from the sardonic teleology of "Napoleon" (now a pastry to the whimsical twist on the torch song "Poor You" ("You don't know what you're missing For you're only kissing me").

Harburg was a wonderful, witty writer, and McCorkle inhabits his world with complete assurance and knowledge of the surprising possibilities in his songs.

censorship of any kind because then you're never going to have works that are important and you're going to have writers under pressure all the time. . .I think it's sinful to give a guy a typewriter and the guy's going to write something and all of a sudden we'll be monitoring it very, very, very carefully."

Mansfield, who abandoned one of the most successful production careers in the television business to become his wife's press agent when she turned from acting to writing, doesn't care who "monitors" the 1981 update of her most popular book.

"In a way, 'Valley of the Dolls' really is the story of my wife's life," he said. "She's Jennifer, up to a certain point. In the movie, Jennifer goes to Paris and becomes a lesbian. That didn't happen to Jackie but Jennifer attempts suicide and Jackie did. It's not easy going through a mastectomy because you feel like half a woman. . .there was a time when she just didn't want to live any more.

"What happened to Jennifer getting fired from a show because somebody didn't like her – happened to Jackie. Talulah Bankhead once fired her from a show because Jackie wouldn't change the color of her hair.

"One of the things about fiction that catches hold is that good fiction is imagination applied to facts."

"Jackie just had a stretch of 10 years," he said. "I gave everything up because she was doing so well. I didn't want to leave her alone. I didn't want to trust anybody else and I thought I knew the best way to do it.

"I am the keeper of the flame."

"Valley" has sold more than 27 million copies — a still unbroken record — and Mansfield obviously had something to do with it.

But it is the woman he wants the world to remember.

Some new stereo receivers 'pathetically overdesigned'

By RICH WARREN
© 1981 Chicago Sun-Times

The Yamaha R-2000 is one of those pathetically overdesigned receivers that reminds me of a car with electric ashtrays. For example, there's a button marked "Auto Phono" that automatically switches to the turntable the minute you place the stylus in the record groove.

The biggest selling point of the $900 R-2000 is its Carver-type "Spatial Expander." Unlike the Carver circuit itself, the Yamaha Spatial Expander permits you to adjust the degree of image enhancement. It provides the illusion of sound projecting from places other than the speakers.

It works, but at the expense of muddying the sound a bit. There seems to be more frequency alteration with Yamaha's circuit than with several of the other available add-on image-enhancement circuits.

Yamaha's digitaly synthesized turner, which is capable of an exceptional 81-db signal-to-noise ratio in stereo, features seven pre-set buttons permitting you a choice of seven AM and seven FM stations. Like most contemporary receivers, the old-fashion tuning dial is gone, replaced with a glowing green digital readout.

Push a bar and the tuner scans up and down the dial. It sometimes hesitates before locking into a station, and the display flickers back and forth a few tenths of a megahertz before settling down.

The receiver also features Yamaha's well-known adjustable loudness compensation. Among the many front-panel switches are provisions for three pairs of speakers, subsonic and high filters and a mid-range tone control.

The R-2000 boasts a Carver-type power supply, making it one of the highest powered receivers on the market at 150 watts per channel, yet remaining light and operating with very little heat.

help and occasional lapses in professionalism.

Until now, video journalism and the men and women behind television's nightly news programs have failed to inspire the same romantic drama that the print medium has. Perhaps it's because TV journalism is relatively new.

Certainly Walter Cronkite, the late Chet Huntley and David Brinkley could not be made out to be dashing, daring Dans who became involved in the news itself.

Mike Wallace comes a little closer as does Dan Rather, who was criticized for dressing in Arab garb to cover the Afghanistan war.

Until now the networks have steered away from a dramatic series based on the machinations of television news coverage.

But CBS is producing "Jessica Novak," starring Helen Shaver in the title role as an intrepid video newswoman for a local Los Angeles channel. Her boss is hard bolled Maxwell Kenyon, played by David Spielberg.

Kenyon sees Novak as his "ace human-interest reporter" but she dreams of becoming a top investigative reporter. All the old elements present in the old movies are there. A scoop by any other name is still a scoop.

Will sophisticated, world-weary viewers tune in to watch the modern version of "The Front Page" or an electronic version of "Lou Grant"?

Spielberg, who looks as if he can play a convincingly tough editor, says if the scripts continue to be as good as the pilot show, the series will be a hit.

"There's a lot of drama involved in the evening newscasts for local stations all over the country as well as for the networks," he said.

"I hung around the newsroom at WCBS in New York and KNXT here in Hollywood. There are slow spots during the day but as the deadline nears for the news show to go on the air, it's like curtain time for a play. It's exciting.

"There are last-minute changes, breaking stories, stories that fall through, technical problems and all the rest. The tempo increases and the tension grows until the red light goes on to signal the newscasters are on the air.

"There is a lot of drama inherent in the news editor's job, making the assignments for his field reporters and crews, determining what will go on the air and what won't.

"Our show will take viewers behind the scenes to show what goes on with TV news programs. And it will help restore some faith in news coverage after what happened to that Washington Post woman and the Pulitzer Prize and the recent Carol Burnett case against the National Inquirer."

The producers of "Jessica Novak" have already taken some ideas for scripts from recent news stories.

Jessica will be investigating a lifeguard illness traced to an open drainage ditch, Jessica dodging attentions of an over-devoted fan, interviewing a fugitive Indian activist wanted by the FBI and befriending a 15-year-old hooker.

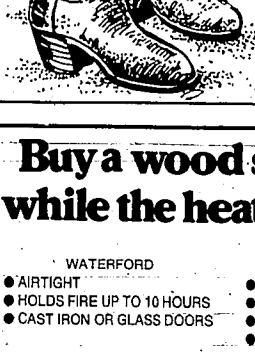

"I wouldn't want to be a newsman myself," Spielberg said. "I don't like the hours. And the pay isn't all that great either."

Disney films enter market

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Walt Disney Home Video, protective of most of its feature-length cartoon classics, has announced it will release six new titles on videocassettes this month.

The studio's classic "Alice in Wonderland," based on Lewis Carroll's literary masterpiece and originally released in 1951, is the second Disney animated feature to be released on cassette on a rental-only basis. The first was "Dumbo."

The other new titles to be released on casettes are "Old Yeller," "Darby O'Gill and the Little People," "Amy," "A Dream Called Walt Disney World" and "A Walt Disney Christmas."

Banned editor illuminates apartheid

By United Press International

Asking for Trouble:
The autobiography of a banned journalist
by Donald Woods (Atheneum, $12.95)

The violent opposition to the Springbok rugby tour of the United States and South Africa's recent invasion of Angola have thrust that country's apartheid, or racial segregation laws, into the limelight.

Of course, many in the United States with its constitutional guarantees loudly condemn apartheid as do many whites in South Africa, but Donald Woods disdains these armchair liberals. He has had first-hand experience of standing up to fight the system.

As a result, he's been banned from writing or from living in his homeland, and forced to live in exile in Britain.

He's been followed by South African security police, his phones have been tapped and he's been awakened in the middle of the night by anonymous callers threatening him and his family for his constant criticism of apartheid in his editorials in the Daily Dispatch.

His home has been shot at and in a desperate attempt to muzzle his voice, security police sent his young daughter an acid-impregnated T-shirt.

Hence, Woods' appropriately named "Asking for Trouble," which catalogs the life of a man who although not born a rebel, is forced to become one by the system. Every step along the way, from lawyer's apprentice to editor of one of South Africa's most liberal newspapers, leads to the inevitability of exile after a dramatic escape disguised as a priest.

Steve Biko, leader of the Black Consciousness Movement, made Woods aware of the violent undercurrents of South Africa and Biko's death in police custody strengthened his resolve to expose the system as unjust.

He peppers his book with delightful anecdotes about lawyers and newspapermen and South Africa's blacks, among whom he grew up in the Transkei.

But it is the stories of the Afrikaaner politicians who established apartheid after the war which give Woods' book a frightening quality.

He was in a privileged position to know many of the politicians personally and he gives an incisive look at the Afrikaaner's siege mentality.

As Woods says, how could he hope to alter the thinking of former Prime Minister Balthazar James Vorster, who once told him: "If you keep telling people they are oppressed, they will begin believing it."

Woods' book leaves the impression that the final confrontation between black and white in South Africa is only just around the corner.

Sparks Fly Upward, by Stewart Granger, (G.P. Putnam's Sons, $14.95)

The role on Stewart Granger could only be played by Stewart Granger. Famous for roles turned down by Cary Grant and Errol Flynn, Granger really has buckled a few swashes in his time.

Last of the Hollywood swashbuckling heroes, Granger is nonetheless a working man at heart.

When not dueling, drinking or defying fate, Granger excels at story-telling. His adventures on location during the filming of his various costume epics make great reading.

But whether fighting cobras in Africa or columnists in Hollywood, Granger met his match in a tangle with millionaire Howard Hughes.

These adventures are meaty, hot and bitter enough to please a cynic, but with enough savor for those who like happy endings. Those who enjoy spicy star-studded gossip will dig right in.

But even a picky reader can't help liking the "difficult" Granger for being who he is — James Lablache, known as "Jimmy," a tough kid from Great Britain who never forgot his origins.

Book on materialism takes Japan by storm

By JOHN NEEDHAM
United Press International

TOKYO — It started as a best-selling novel, became a movie, spurred advertising copywriters to ecstasy and has now transformed Tokyo into a "Crystal City" of "Crystal People" doing "Crystal Things."

The book-movie-slogan also has made nearly $47,826 for Yasuo Tanaka, a 25-year-old man who was graduated last spring from a prestigious university and worked two months for Mobil Oil of Japan.

The book, titled "Somehow Crystal," has so far sold 1.1 million copies.

More importantly, it is taken as the definition of the youth of Japan, ranking with Gertrude Stein's coining of the "Lost Generation" or Tom Wolfe's "Radical Chic" people and their successors in the "me decade."

Only 150 pages, plus 50 pages of notes explaining what the young pacesetters wear, listen to, read and do, the book was written in two weeks and portrays Japan's affluent, postwar generation.

The main character is a female student at a fashionable private university. She also models part-time, lives with her boyfriend, Junichi, has a casual one-night stand with a pickup and operates on a philosophy of if it feels good, do it.

"Junichi and I live without anything bothering us," the heroine says. "We buy or wear or eat something that makes us happy. We listen to pleasant music or take a walk somewhere or do something that makes us feel good.

"I'd like to continue modeling in my 30s and be a good-looking woman who wears suits by Chanel. I keep jogging through the streets. When I wipe my forehead, the smell of Diorrissimo and my sweat mingle together."

Tanaka, fashionable and trendy in an ivory blazer and navy blue trousers, said he "tried to put in my book the mood, the feeling, of the times."

He explains the title in various ways, but most often speaks of crystal as an object defined by something else.

"You can only tell it's crystal when light is reflected on it from the outside," he said. "Without the light, it could be a rock, or stone or anything."

In the same way, he believes the youth of Japan define themselves through shirts with alligators, penguins or polo players on the pocket, handbags emblazoned with "Gucci" or "Burberry," certain "in" coffeehouses of chrome and mirrored glass on the outside, tubular modern furniture inside.

"In Japan today all youth have about the same education level and come from the same type of family," Tanaka said.

"They identify themselves by the stores where they shop, the clothes they wear, through material things. It is only through these material things that they can identify themselves and where they fit in."

Speaking of youth who "borrow their identities" from the clothes they wear, the shops they patronize, the meals they eat, Tanaka says it "is a sad thing, but nevertheless this is the situation."

'First Monday' full of old, stale jokes

By David Elliott
1981 Chicago Sun-Times

"First Monday in October," a movie about the first woman on the Supreme Court, has opened months earlier than planned, to bask in the publicity surrounding the nomination of Judge Sandra D. O'Connor to the high court. They should have rushed it into release 20 years ago.

Walter Matthau is pretty hard not to like, but he pushes our goodwill in this stagey, stodgy, old-fashioned adaptation by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee of their hit play. (Being old-fashioned is not bad in itself — "Eye of the Needle" is old-fashioned in a smart, lively way — but this one is just old. We can hear the bones wheeze.)

Movies have a habit of becoming dumb with significance when they deal with high politics, and for a theme this obviously "treated" you have to go back beyond the 1973 groaner about a black president, "The Man," to a 1964 item called "Kisses for My President," in which Polly Bergen played the first female president as if coached by Nancy Reagan.

Almost every scene relies on Matthau's bag-faced ability to be a smart-aleck slob. As Justice Dan Snow, he's like W.C. Fields playing around inside Justice William O. Douglas. The Fields touch is his timing, which slaps some wit between the thick bricks of the dialogue. The Douglas touches, including the late justice's marital problems and his mountaineering, have nothing to do with the story, but seem to represent Lawrence and Lee's sense of realism (or, Lord help them, of homage).

Liberal Matthau is a one-man band for First Amendment rights. When Jill Clayburgh, a California conservative, gets appointed to the big bench, they lock horns. (Almost literally. The camera setups are of the kind that should get Ronald Neame cashiered from the Directors' Guild.)

Of course, Clayburgh is also a situation-comedy feminist, and she proves it with stuff like: "A woman can ovulate and think at the same time! A uterus is like absolute pitch — some have it, some don't." By what right do these writers talk about pitch? Here's another of their gags:

Pious old justice: "This is a historic occasion."

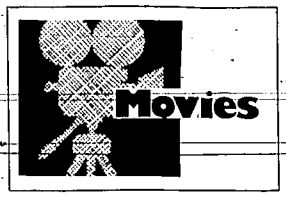

Matthau: "Yeah, like the Jesuits going co-ed!"

(That one laugh you hear is Bob Hope.)

Clayburgh, everyone's darling in "An Unmarried Woman," has become a slap-on image: a hip June Allyson. The Matthau character, the jokes, in fact the entire movie, patronize her, and she seems earnestly off-key. It's a pompous part and, they toss in a peekaboo shower scene, a silly one. Remarkably, Clayburgh keeps her dignity.

Winking, sniggering and harrumphing through marble halls of history, this film is a scrap sale on old Frank Capra ideas. And when James Stephens (of "The Paper Chase") shows up as a law clerk, it confirms our belief that the movie is just dawdling, waiting to join the TV season.

'Paternity' is predictable, patterned

By Roger Ebert
1981 Chicago Sun-Times

Burt Reynolds seems to have developed two basic screen characters, which, for ease of classification, we can describe as Bad Burt and Good Reynolds.

Bad Burt is a mean ol' boy who tools around the Southland in a souped-up sports car, infuriating sheriffs and making Sally Field cry. Good Reynolds, however, is a guy who used to be macho and heartless, but has grown into a sensitive, caring kinda guy who is trying to build bridges to women and children.

"Paternity" gives us the good guy. The Reynolds character is a lot like the man he played in "Starting Over" and maybe a little bit in "Hooper:" a guy torn between a self-image as a ladies' man and a desire to grow more sensitive.

This time, he's the manager of Madison Square Garden and he leads a lonely but (he thinks) idyllic existence as a New York playboy. He's got a date every night, but there's nobody to come home to. And when he shoots baskets with a friend's son, he begins to realize that he would like to have a son, too.

Not a family, mind you. And certainly not a wife. But a son. He sends out feelers for a surrogate mother. All the candidates are impossible or have braces on their teeth. Then he stumbles across a pretty blond waitress in a restaurant where he has lunch. She's a music student, wants to study in Paris and will bear his child for a one-time payment of $50,000 (considerably higher than market price, I believe).

The waitress is played by Beverly D'Angelo. You will remember her as the rich kid in "Hair!" and as Pasty Cline in "Coal Miner's Daughter." She is wonderful in this movie: soft and warm and understanding. Of course, we know (although Good Reynolds is slow to catch on) that they will eventually fall in love. God knows Burt tries to hold out and play the playboy role, but eventually even his sexy dates such as Elizabeth Ashley start to like D'Angelo and to lay a guilt trip on Reynolds.

But aha, you are thinking, I have given the plot away. Well, yes and no. I have given the plot away in one sense, but in another sense this movie drives us to the edges of our seat with maddening frustration because it is so slow to give itself away.

"Paternity" is absolutely predictable at every moment. Stop the film, turn on the lights in the theater, and nine out of 10 members of the audience could correctly predict what was going to happen next.

The movie has another flaw. It takes its characters just a little too evenly. Although the movie was directed by David Steinberg, a comic actor with a good sense of timing, "Paternity's" timing is so slow-paced and stately there are times when this doesn't feel like a comedy, it feels like a historical romance. People speak at a measured pace; they move through scenes as if pre-programmed; they do not contain the passion and surprise you would expect in a story dealing with matters of sex and life and identity.

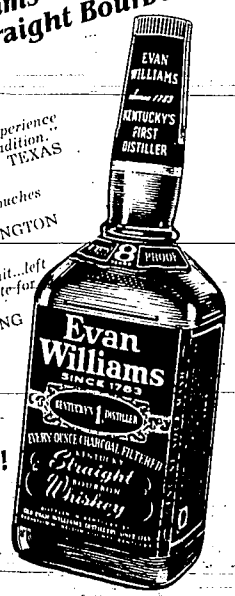

Too bad. Burt Reynolds can be a most engaging actor, the movie surrounds him with other convincingly three-dimensional actors

What's what

Moviemakers know that how they direct an actress to deal with stairs conveys whatever they want to show about her. Poised and dignified: She decends slowly. Young and friendly: She sits on the bottom step with her arms crossed in front of her knees. Tired and overworked: She climbs, holding the handrail. Ill: She makes her way down, gripping the rail. Drunk: Zip, down the bannister.

In the Belgian town of Binche every February, Europeans throw costume balls with parades, bands, streetdances, and much to drink. Cairn is the name of that place gave us our word "binge."

How do you rank the seasons of the year in order of your own preference? Pollsters say most citizens reply: 1. Spring. 2. Summer. 3. Autumn. 4. Winter.

ALONE ON EVEREST

Q. Has anybody ever climbed Mt. Everest alone?
A. Only Reinhold Messner of Austria. In 1980. He did it without oxygen tanks, incidentally.

Q. What's the real difference, if any, between "mountain grown" coffee and some other kind?
A. Arabica beans of the higher altitudes have more flavor with less bitterness than the robusta beans of the lower levels. The arabica cost more. The robusta have more caffeine.

Q. Did the Beatles ever meet Elvis Presley?
A. At least once. Early in their careers at Presley's place, Graceland, near Memphis.

THE SAD TRUTH

"The man tolerates the marriage for the sake of the woman. The woman tolerates the man for the sake of the marriage." An elderly observation, this. Is it true? Yes, says our Love and War man, about as true as any generality. But is it worth remembering? Maybe not. Truth is not sufficient of itself. Truth uncolored by illusion can be sad.

Countless girls in the emerging Third World nations bear the given name of Lucy now—in the wake of decades of Lucy television shows still seen in 79 countries.

In Spain, an amateur bullfighter can be shot for practicing his technique with a bull out on the range.

Q. What's the one thing most people fear most?
A. Physical violence.

Muggers inflict fewer injuries overall than pursesnatchers.

Film editing, not bad acting holding up release of 'Reds'

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN
©1981 King Features Syndicate

Gossip

Q. Can it be true that Diane Keaton's performance in the movie "Reds" is so bad that the producers have delayed further the release of the movie? She's always been so good in her other performances. — C.K.

A. "Reds," Warren Beatty's big new movie about American journalist John Reed, who covered and supported the Russian Revolution in 1917 and is buried in the Kremlin, has been delayed mostly because Beatty's been busy editing a huge amount of film footage. Paramount Pictures expects to release "Reds" around Christmas, and we hear Diane, who plays Reed's lover (he's played, naturally, by Beatty), is fabulous. A lot is riding on the movie since it reportedly cost over $30 million to make. Diane had another movie, "Shoot the Moon," due out about the same time, but the distributor of that film agreed to hold back release for a couple of months. Word is Diane is so good in "Reds" that Paramount doesn't want to take the chance of having Keaton compete with herself in the Academy Award sweepstakes.

Q. We hear that Suzanne Somers needs a very high-powered actress to carry her new TV series, "The Suzanne Somers Show." Has the actress been chosen yet? — M.S.

A. Suzanne and her manager-husband Alan Hamel haven't cast the other principal part on the projected new show for CBS. In fact, production hasn't started yet and there is no definite date for a premiere. But word is the part will go to an unknown. Suzanne will portray a single, blonde, sexy and slightly dippy airline stewardess with a first-class heart of gold. The other principal part is that of a single, young female aspiring lawyer, who rooms with the stewardess and who complains a lot about her job. Suzanne's character will, naturally, cheer up the roommate. That part surely won't go to any high-powered actress, since a big star would upstage Somers on her own TV show.

Q. Whatever happened to Desi Arnaz Jr.'s marriage to actress Linda Purl? Are they still together? — J.L.

A. Desi and Linda were married Jan. 13, 1980, but split up before the year was out. The brevity of the relationship surprised their friends, but Linda has since cleared up at least part of the mystery. Seems she was just too caught up in her work — she's completed two feature films and a TV series (ABC's "The Manions of America") since then. But now we hear Linda's mellowing some, and the couple is trying to reconcile. Don't take any bets on the outcome, however, since Linda is now talking about co-producing a TV movie — about a woman who's deserted by her husband. There's no word about what Desi feels about the plot — or, in fact, what he's doing.

Q. What's this about Esther Williams making a movie comeback in roles that would play up her swimming ability? Isn't she a little too old for that? — K.O.

A. Esther, who was born 58 years ago in Los Angeles, laughs at talk of a comeback. She was a national swimming champion before becoming one of MGM's biggest stars of the late 1940s and '50s, but she's long since had it as a film queen. At a recent screening of "Mommie Dearest," the film about Joan Crawford, Williams recalled working on the same movie lot with Crawford, and expressed some sympathy for her. Esther claims it's extremely difficult to emotionally survive as a movie queen. That's why at 38, after making "Magic Fountain" and "The Big Show," she professionally hung up her swim suit for good. Esther has since made a lot of money in a number of business ventures, and has been married for 28 years to actor Fernando Lamas.

Q. Wasn't Cathy Lee Crosby a bit hypocritical in getting involved in that recent anti-drug program on TV when she's an admitted drug user herself? — H.J.

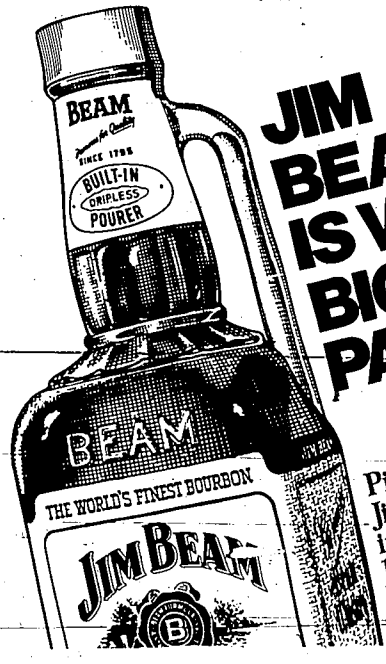

A. True, Cathy admits she has used drugs in the past. The 32-year-old actress once went before a congressional committee and confessed to taking cortisone during her days as a high-ranking tennis player. But, Cathy hastily adds, she's now one of Hollywood's staunchest anti-drug advocates. The show Cathy helped produce, "Get High on Yourself," was backed by her current boyfriend, producer Robert Evans. He launched the project to clear a drug charge of his own. Now, Cathy, who incidentally is not related to the late Bing Crosby, and Evans are firmly in the anti-drug camp. And take it from her, that's not incredible.

Q. Doesn't Dolly Parton have a younger sister who's even more talented if not as busty as Dolly is? — M.V.

A. It remains to be seen if Dolly's 21-year-old sister, Rachel Parton Dennison, is as talented as her older sibling, but she's already causing some big Hollywood names to sit up and take notice. Rachel was discovered by none other than Jane Fonda — who describes her as blonde and wigless (unlike Dolly) and well-endowed (like Dolly). Jane is producing the TV version of her hit movie, "Nine to Five," and she's cast Rachel in the part Dolly played in the series. After it bows, we bet a lot of Hollywood insiders will be singing, "Hello, Rachel."

Hollywood goes acupuncture; alternative to drug culture

By CHRIS CHRYSTAL
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — George Harrison, the ex-Beatle, appears on an eye-catching record album cover with his skin pierced by slender acupuncture needles, but it's not just a record-selling gimmick.

He actually gets acupuncture treatments — a "tune-up" he calls it — whenever he visits Los Angeles, he said in a recent interview.

Harrison, 38, is among many youth and health conscious celebrities who visit Zion Yu, a 20th generation acupuncture practitioner in an area of the country where the pursuit of happiness produces considerable tension and torment.

"Why do I get acupuncture?" Harrison joked at Yu's new Rejuvenation Center. "Oh, you know, tumors on the brain, amputated legs — the run-of-the-mill diseases you pick up in Hollywood."

Growing serious, Harrison said he learned about Yu's treatments through a friend who suffered a serious motorcycle injury.

"I thought there must be an alternative to taking drugs all your life," said the famed singer-guitarist with the former Beatles, who has been seeing Yu since 1974.

"He pinpoints the weak part of your system and zooms in," Harrison said at a party celebrating the opening of Yu's new center that offers acupuncture, the concentrated exercise Tai Chi, calisthenics, massage and skin treatments.

Yu has practiced acupuncture in Los Angeles for 10 years since coming from Taiwan and his patients include actors William Holden, James Coburn, Jim Garner and William Shatner, entertainer Merv Griffin, actresses Jane Fonda, Natalie Wood, and singer Peggy Lee.

Other celebrities have asked Yu not to disclose their names, he said.

Yu, 35, uses the 5,000-year-old Chinese medical treatment for all kinds of ailments — arthritis, depression, loss of hair. He even offers acupuncture "face lifts" that he claims tighten facial tissue.

"Everything the body is based on is the nerves," Yu said. "When they deteriorate, the body energy flow doesn't s[illegible] ssages to the memory bank and everyth[illegible]n. We stimulate the nervous system properly and the weak part gets stronger. People look better, their memory is better, they are happier, willing to do more things."

Yu advises his patients to accept acupuncture as something that will help them. Their mental attitude toward the treatment is important, he said.

"Many people think this is a gimmick or something. Wrong. People who experience this know. They feel the changes released throughout their entire system."

His patients claim he has cured uncomfortable chemotherapy symptoms, increased hair growth, and heightened their body sensitivity.

"The whole thing is different from American medicine," said Gary Steffen, 57, a ruddy-faced businessman who suffered from back trouble, skin cancer on his hand and ulcers.

"Zion doesn't claim to cure cancer, but after the treatment, the redness and itching went away, and those were the cancer symptoms," Steffen said.

Writer Maurice Zolotow, 67, started getting acupuncture for a painful wrenched back and was skeptical at first.

"I was very much afraid of it. I would scream as every needle went in. But most of it was in my mind. Every pain went away."

Now he visits the clinic every two weeks for a "balancing" treatment, in which Yu inserts needles in various parts of the body, "to keep me feeling good."

"Insertion of the needles takes just a few minutes," Zolotow said.

Nettles' blast helps Yanks get flag again

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Graig Nettles, the leader of the "veteran power" movement, drilled a three-run double in the ninth inning Thursday night to carry the New York Yankees to a 4-0 victory over the injury-depleted Oakland A's for their fourth American League pennant in the last six years.

Willie Randolph hit a solo homer in the sixth while rookie Dave Righetti and relievers Ron Davis and Rich Gossage combined on a five-hitter in helping the Yankees complete a three-game sweep in the best-of-five series.

The Yankees will meet the National League champions, either Los Angeles or Montreal, in the first game of the World Series beginning Tuesday night.

Nettles, who had five hits in seven at-bats and drove in six runs in the first two games of the series, gave the Yankees some much-needed breathing room in the ninth when he doubled over the head of center fielder Rick Bosetti to chase home three runs.

Randolph's solo homer in the sixth off loser Matt Keough was his first since April 28 and that was really all the Yankees needed as their pitching staff once again completely overpowered the A's.

The 22-year-old Righetti, who grew up in nearby San Jose, Calif., went the first six innings, allowing four hits, striking out four and walking two before giving way to Davis.

Davis retired the six batters he faced in succession and Gossage gave up only a harmless single in the ninth to get the save and his performance stretched the Yankee bullpen's string to just one earned run in 29 1-3 innings of playoff competition.

The A's, who lost the services of star outfielders Dwayne Murphy and Rickey Henderson during the course of the game, were no match for the Yankee pitchers over the last five innings. They went down in order in four of the five frames.

The A's did threaten in each of the first three innings but each time Righetti rose to the occasion, just as he had done all season, in building up credentials for AL Rookie of the Year honors.

In the first, Henderson led off with a single and stole second and Cliff Johnson walked with one out. However, Righetti got the dangerous Tony Armas to ground out into an inning-ending double play.

The A's threatened again in the second when Kelvin Moore and Dave McKay hit back-to-back singles with one out. But Righetti struck out Jeff Newman and got Rob Picciolo to hit into a forceout to end that threat.

Oakland's last threat came in the third when Henderson led off with a walk and stole second with one out, but Righetti retired Johnson on a pop to second and struck out Armas to end the inning.

Although Keough allowed only one run in 8 1-3 innings, he was lucky to survive that long as New York hit the

Tammy Crow (in front) and Julie Yergensen (right) look ahead toward another Twin Falls cross country victory Thursday

Bruins, Borah continue domination

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' girls continued their domination and the Borah boys came through as expected to win the Twin Falls Cross Country Classic Thursday afternoon.

Twin Falls' girls, headed by individual champion Tammy Crow, poured six of the first 11 across the finish line to sack up their division with 31 points against 56 for runner-up Capital.

Rick Bergeson of Borah out-sprinted Minico's Albert Lara over the last 150-yards to become the boys individual champion and pace the Lions to a-team total 44 points. Highland was second with 78 with Minico at 86.

Following a cloudy, foggy morning, the sun broke through in time for good weather conditions in the meet, probably a prelude to the state finals in Boise two weeks from now. The competition was staged at Canyon Springs Golf Course, all the runners — including host Twin Falls — being tested on the course for the first time this year.

The general concensus was the course was demanding and tough with several inclines without any major hills.

Crow, capping four years of solid success on the Bruin varsity, simply ran away from everyone.

"I was pushing all the way. Considering what I'm going to see at state, I felt I had to get used to pushing myself," she said of the 200-plus yard victory and the fact that defending state champion Lucia Wanders of Caldwell is waiting.

"It was a tough course," Crow said. "It's the first time I've run it this year, even in practice. We used to run here some but now they're (the course) open on (Monday) afternoons. But it's a beautiful place and a beautiful place to run — although when I was running I didn't have much chance to enjoy the scenery."

"The girls ran very well," said Coach Duane Stands. "Better than we could logically expect and about as well as we could hope."

Stands and his Bruin girls have been waiting for a chance to avenge a rare state loss a year ago to Capital.

"We had six girls in the top 11 but more important we had seven girls in before Capital's third and fourth girls came across. I don't know if we can count on that in state but it at least shows we have the capability of beating them. I was very pleased because our sixth and seventh runners were a factor for us. They displaced points against every other team in the field."

It wasn't a particularly happy day for Twin Falls' Julie Yergensen, who usually runs with Crow. Twice the Twin Falls senior had to pick herself up. She was tripped going into the first turn off the start and later slipped and fell again.

"She spent most of her strength just getting back up," Stands said. "We think without those two falls she easily could have moved up a couple more places at least."

While Crow turned her victory into a solitary sprint around the course, there was a five-man knot through most of the boys race.

Through the midpoint, Minico's Lara and Marty Donaldson were locked up with Bergeson, Greg Kelly of Highland and Keith McNeil of Pocatello. A blanket would have covered the fivesome over half of the race.

In fact, those five have spent the fall beating each other. Lara held the only win of the year over Bergeson and had beaten the other three fairly consistently. But last week in the Gem State Conference finals, the two Pocatello men relegated him to third place.

But as they came off the final hill and headed toward the chute Thursday, it was Lara and Bergesen. Lara held the lead for a while but in the final 100 yards Bergesen inched ahead and went on to win by perhaps 10 yards.

The Twin Falls boys wound up well back at 170 but Coach Jerry Kleinkopf was not totally disappointed.

"I thought the boys all ran pretty well and I was really pleased with (Chris) Williams and (freshman Rod) Uribe. They finished 10th and 15th and I think that means they will have a chance to run at state. We haven't beaten Minico this year and I doubt we will so we won't be able to take a team to state (only the top half of district results advance.). But it will be nice to have some individuals up there," he said.

Sophomore Susie Crow kept things in the family and Twin Falls by leading the Bruin junior varsity girls to victory. Here again Twin

Expo ace Rogers faces Los Angeles

MONTREAL (UPI) — Steve Rogers, backed by chilly weather and a crowd afflicted with Expo fever, will try to pitch Montreal into a 2-1 lead in the National League Championship Series tonight against Los Angeles left-hander Jerry Reuss.

Rogers, 12-8 during the regular season but 3-0 in October, can pull Montreal within one victory of its first-ever pennant while the Dodgers must win two of three to reach the World Series for the first time since 1978.

By winning an infrequent game in Dodger Stadium Wednesday night — they had lost 10 in a row there — the Expos squared the best-of-five series at one victory apiece and returned to the most comfortable home in the NL.

The Expos have compiled the best record in the league over the last three years, a 145-72 mark for a .668 percentage. Part of the reason for their home success is the way the Expos use their artificial surface at Olympic Stadium.

They have other advantages, too. The weatherman is often a Expo fan, providing chilly temperatures that can freeze the edge off an opponent. Weekend forecasts call for temperatures in the 40s and 50s, not exactly what the Dodgers are accustomed to at home.

If the weatherman is an Expo fan, he has a lot of company. The Montreal crowd, considered one of the most emotional in baseball, should be at a peak for the remainder of the series.

Evidence of Expo fever is virtually everywhere. Aboard a New York-to-Montreal jetliner, the pilot received a cheer when he announced to his passengers the news of the Expos' victory. A taxi driver surprised visitors to this hockey mecca by telling them that he knew little about the NHL's Canadiens, that he cared only about baseball. A radio announcer gave the weather report, noting gleefully that it should favor the Expos.

But the biggest actor in the Expos' favor may be standing on the pitcher's mound and wearing No. 45.

Rogers, once considered a bad risk in a crucial game, has suddenly become one of baseball's top clutch pitchers.

He hurled a masterpiece over the New York Mets on the last weekend of the season to inch the Expos toward the East Division second-season title. He then outdueled three-time Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton in two straight outings to help the Expos to a five-game victory over Philadelphia in the mini-playoffs.

Don't figure the Dodgers to fall easily, though. Reuss overpowered the Houston Astros in the deciding game of the NL West mini-playoffs. First baseman Steve Garvey is one of baseball's top producers in the clutch and the return of Ron Cey at third base adds power to the Los Angeles lineup.

One key to Game 3 is whether the Dodgers can recover from seeing their ace left-hander, Fernando Valenzuela, defeated by Ray Burris in the second game.

"I pitched the way I always pitched," said the screwball artist. "It's just that this time they got some runs. It seems every time I lose, I'm asked what went wrong. Well, it's just that the other team played well and I didn't pitch well. You can't expect to win every time out."

The Dodgers may also find the Expos slightly distracted by reports that Montreal catcher Gary Carter has decided to play out his option in 1982 and sign with a California team.

Carter, who hit two games in the 1981 All-Star Game and who has hit .462 in the playoffs so far, is considered the cornerstone of the franchise and gave less than a firm denial.

"I have never said anything to anybody about wanting to leave Montreal," said Carter. "I don't know how those rumors came about. Certainly it will be a tough decision. I was brought up and raised in California. But I have established roots in Canada.

"I'm very comfortable there. The only thing that's attractive about southern California is that my wife and I have family there."

Time for the Rim-to-Rim run arrives

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One is for fun and the other is for fanatics.

Runners seeking casual exercise or a challenging workout can satisfy their needs in Saturday morning's fourth annual Rim-to-Rim Run, co-sponsored by The Times-News, Newton's Sports Center, Falls Brand Meats and Idaho Frozen Foods.

A 3.5-mile fun run starts at 8 a.m. The course begins at the north side of the Perrine Bridge, continues downhill through Canyon Springs Road and concludes at the Blue Lakes Country Club.

The 7.5-mile Rim-to-Rim run is scheduled for 9 a.m. Starting at the Blue Lakes Country Club, the course is introduced and dominated by a steep, tortuous ribbon of asphalt ascending from the canyon. It continues for nearly two miles down the old Jerome highway, across the Perrine Bridge and down Canyon Springs Road back to the country club.

Registration for both races continues today. Completed registration forms must be brought to Newton's Sports Center at 1188 Blue Lakes Blvd. No.

Day-of-race registration for the fun run begins at 7 at the Perrine Bridge's south parking lot and 7:30 at the country club for the Rim-to-Rim.

Pre-registration entry fees are $5 for individuals and $10 for families. Individuals and families entering Saturday must pay $7 and $12, respectively.

Finding decent parking could prove more difficult than running the race itself. Fun run participants may park at the lot located at the Perrine Bridge's south side, while limited parking will be available for Rim-to-Rim entrants at the top of the canyon's north rim. Trans IV buses will take runners to the country club for the start of the race.

Upon completing their race, entrants will receive a T-shirt. However, only pre-registrants are guaranteed a T-shirt immediately. If the supply expires, day-of-race entrants will get their shirt in the mail.

Trophies will be awarded to male and female winners in each of eight age divisions: 12 and under, 13-18, 19-24, 25-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-49 and 50 and over.

Complete race results will be printed in Sunday's Times-News.

Senators proceed to state finals

Gooding spikers defeat Shoshone again for District title

By MARV CLEMONS
Times-News sports editor

WENDELL — Shoshone High would just as soon not play Gooding when it comes to volleyball.

The Senators defeated Shoshone 15-9 and 15-8 Thursday night for the Fourth District A-3 championship and a berth in next week's state finals. The Indians have lost just three times this season and each time Gooding has been the team with the six-shooter.

During the regular season Shoshone was heading for a perfect mark when the Senators claimed a win in the next to last week of the campaign.

Gooding entered the district tourney earlier this week with the top seed and Shoshone was No. 2 and in the opposite bracket. Both won twice to gain Thursday afternoon's semifinals. Gooding won 15-11 and 15-3 to send the Indians into the loser's bracket.

Kimberly eliminated Valley in three games with wins of 15-8 and 15-4 in the last two after dropping the first 15-11.

Kimberly then advanced to meet Shoshone, but the Bulldogs fell by consecutive 15-10 scores. That set the stage for another Gooding-Shoshone match. The two teams met in last year's district finals.

After close play in the early minutes, Gooding pulled ahead 6-3 on the serving of Gwen Reed, some strong spiking by Julie Clemons and timely blocking of Kelly Posseco and Cindy Sears.

Liz Kime got a hot hand at the service line to pull the Indians close at 7-6, only to see the Senators' Reed and Clemons strike for four points with spikes and a 10-7 lead.

Clarin Osborn rolled in a point for the Indians, but Gooding had the momentum and a 15-9 win as Sears blocked a Shoshone spike for the final point.

The second game mirrored the first. It was tight early, Gooding took a small lead and Shoshone rallied for a 8-6 edge before Gooding took control to put the Indian uprising down for the third time.

Clemons fired a serve that grazed Liz Norman's back as she tried to duck, making it 8-7. Hinkle tapped in a shot to make it 8-8. After two side outs, Hinkle's serve wasn't returned, Shoshone let her second offering drop and the Indians didn't control her third serve. Gooding was up 11-8 and didn't allow a point the rest of the way.

The victory puts Jolene Toone's Senators, 19-2 this fall, into the A-3 State Tournament at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium Oct. 23 and 24. It's the third straight trip for the Senators who won the crown in 1979 and were second last year.

"It was a good effort by all of the girls," Toone said. "These girls have a lot to live up to, I feel. We lost six seniors from last year and these girls keep saying how everybody's improved, but they forget to look at themselves. They've improved a great deal."

Green takes over as Cubs' GM, says managing post is open

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dallas Green, insisting he is no "messiah," Thursday was formally named general manager of the Chicago Cubs and said the job of managing the team is still open.

Green, 47, who had managed the Philadelphia Phillies to the 1980 world championship, signed a multi-year contract to replace Herman Franks as executive vice president and general manager of a team that has not won a pennant in 36 years.

Green, who spent 26 years in the Phillies' organization including the last two as manager, likened his taking over the Cubs to the situation he inherited a decade ago with the Phillies.

"The similarities are striking. We were 33 ½ games behind, floundering with no prospects. The team on the field was not competitive," said Green, who eventually led the Phils to their first world championship in 1980. "If I didn't feel I could get the job done here I wouldn't be here. In my heart, I feel there is a fine future for Chicago and the Chicago franchise."

But Green, who originally turned down the Chicago Tribune Co.'s offer, quickly added he could not work miracles overnight with the Cubs.

"I'm no messiah, but no one will outwork us. ...I am not a believer in timetables," Green said. "The Cubs have not been successful. Someone has to be responsible."

Published reports indicated Green was set to name Phillies' third base coach Lee Elia field manager for the Cubs. Green denied he had made an offer to the former major league shortstop, adding his first priority will be to meet with current Cubs' skipper Joey Amalfitano in the next several days.

"I want to talk to Joey first, face to face," Green said. "There have been a lot of stories on the street. I haven't named a manager yet."

Green said he definitely is not considering managing the team himself.

While Elia was not named, Green made it clear he anticipates the new Cubs' front office team will include some ex-Phillies.

"I want to be careful about the tampering situation. I said when I left the organization I wouldn't rape the Philadelphia Phillies," Green said.

Green said he was first approached by Cubs' board chairman Andrew McKenna in August and, after several discussions, decided to reject the Cubs' offer because he did not want to uproot his family from Philadelphia.

DALLAS GREEN
tries to turn Cubs around

He said he changed his mind because of the decision by the Carpenter family to sell the Phillies.

The Cubs shunned free agents during the William Wrigley ownership but Green said he has the authority — and capital — to sign some if he believes they can help the team.

But Green emphasized he thinks the Cubs can be rebuilt through a strong farm system aided by the club's own scouting system. He shied away from evaluating current Cubs' personnel but said former batting champ Bill Buckner will be "untouchable."

"There are some good players on the Cubs — not all 25 of them," Green said. "I can tell you this, Bill Buckner is not going anywhere if I can help it."

Another high priority will be to install a winning attitude.

"Losing breeds bad thinking," Green added.

Bruins avoid aerials, beat Bonneville by 29

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' Scott Morgan returned the opening kickoff for a touchdown to touch off a rollicking 63-34 offensive duel against Bonneville Thursday night.

The Bruin sophomores scored about every way possible — except Coach John Astorquia didn't put the ball in the air once.

After Morgan's 75-yard jaunt to start the game, Twin Falls scored again on a 28-yard sprint by Morgan. He also added the two-pointer on an option pitch.

Bonneville then moved to Twin Falls' five but fumbled. The Bruins quick kicked the ball to Bonneville's one after a drive bogged down and on the first play of the second, Steve Bennett recovered a fumble in the end zone. He also added the extra point.

Twin Falls got the ball back on an inadvertent squib kick and on fourth and seven Eric Watson broke a reverse for 39 yards. After a pass interception, Corky Federico shoved the Bruins ahead 34-0 with a 54-yard romp.

Bonneville scored twice in the first seven minutes. Rich Black hit Rick McDonald for 28 yards and the first one and ran across from the eight for the second.

In the third period, Morgan scored from five for the Bruins but Scott Anderson offset that with a 43-yard gallop. Watson gathered in the ensuing kickoff at his 20 and roared 80 yards up the middle. After another fumble recovery at the one, Andy Toolson added the seventh Twin Falls score.

In the final period, Shawn Tringham took a 19-yard strike from Black, who then threw to McDonald for the two pointer. Two plays later Gregg Leonard broke a 40-yard replied for the Bruins and Nate Burk converted.

Anderson came back on the first scrimmage for 78 yards and Bonneville's final score.

Twin Falls was falling on the ball inside the Bonneville 10 in the final minute.

Reduced group of hunters marks deer season opening

JEROME — Weather has trimmed hunting pressure considerably but hunter success has held up quite well over the first two days of the deer season.

Bill Weber, regional supervisor for the Fish and Game Department, said Thursday night the department has not compiled its statistics yet. But with foul weather in both the south and north mountains, the number of hunters was definitely down.

The department, due to the budget crunch, is conducting check stations on the northside only. However, it has a number of conservation officers making field checks on the southside.

"When people saw we weren't having checking stations on the south, they evidently thought they might try to take advantage of it. We've made several (violation) cases down there already," Webb said.

Webb said the department's regional personel are spread throughout the area, from Mountain Home east, compiling facts and figures that will be used in department management plans in the future. He added a fairly accurate picture of the opening five days would be summarized early next week.

Recently-deposed Cox gains employment as Toronto skipper

TORONTO (UPI) — Former Atlanta manager Bobby Cox ended a very brief period of unemployment at the major-league level Thursday, signing a one-year pact to take over the helm of the fledgling Toronto Blue Jays for the 1982 American League campaign.

Cox, fired just eight days ago as manager of the Braves by club owner Ted Turner, will replace Bobby Mattick, who last week relinquished the reins of the Blue Jays to accept a front office post with the team.

The Blue Jays, seeking to make a step up from the also-ran level to contender status, had planned to wait until after the World Series to decide on their new field manager. However, the fear Cox might not be available at that time forced team management to rush the decision.

"Bobby Cox was high on the list of every club looking for a manager," said Club President Peter Bavasi, adding that there were at least five teams inquiring about the services of Cox. "Had we tarried and not signed him right away, Bobby Cox would have been the manager of some other club by the end of the week."

Cox, who admitted only to being contacted by the New York Mets, is confident the Blue Jays are headed in the right direction.

"This organization has built a very fine farm system," he said. "I'm glad I'm joining it in its sixth year of operation rather than as an expansion team. A club needs a lot of time before it can show a great deal of development."

In the Blue Jays, Cox inherits a club that has displayed little potential since joining the AL in 1977. The Blue Jays have posted a 270-482 record thus far, second only to the Mets in terms of futility for an expansion club over its first five years.

Toronto had its best year ever in 1980, when under the guidance of Mattick, it recorded a 67-95 mark to finally escape the ignominy of losing 100 games in a season.

During the past campaign, the Blue Jays had a dreadful first half, finishing last in the AL East with a 16-42 record. However, they rebounded to post a 21-27 mark in the last half and were even contending for the top spot until the concluding week of the season.

Cox believes the dismal past performances of the club are quite understandable.

"Toronto is in what is probably the toughest division in baseball," he said. "It takes a lot of time for a young club to be able to contend against the more established teams."

Cox, who played a major role in the development of such rising baseball stars as Ron Guidry while working as a coach with the New York Yankees, posted an overall won-lost record of 266-323 in his four-year tenure with the Braves.

In 1980, Cox helped the Braves earn a fourth-place finish in their division and post their first plus-.500 season since 1974. Atlanta closed strongly that year, winning more games in the final third of the season than any other National League team and gaining Cox several votes for Manager of the Year.

While many observers had touted the Braves as possible replacements for Houston this season as the NL West champions, the predictions failed to materialize and the club placed fourth (25-29) in the first half and fifth (25-27) in the second part of the split season.

Bavasi, who said that the one-year contract was in keeping with the club's policy, would like to make Cox's job with the Blue Jays a little easier for him.

"We hope to get him some better players," he said.

It's not official yet, but Haas looks like Atlanta's new boss

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

MONTREAL (UPI) — Atlanta owner Ted Turner, who changes his mind sometimes, apparently has finally made it up about the Braves' new manager and his choice is Eddie Haas, named the International League's Manager of the Year this season with the Richmond Braves.

Turner is a great believer in rewarding deserving people within his own organization whenever he can, and he is doing that with the 46-year-old Haas.

"We have nothing definite with anybody else," Braves Executive Vice President Al Thornwell said, adding he was attempting to set up a meeting between Haas and Turner this week. "Depending on how it goes between the two, this could be the first of two or three meetings."

Haas led Atlanta's Richmond farm club to a second-place finish behind the New York Yankees' Columbus affiliate and the teams met for the International League's Governor's Cup following regular-season competition. Columbus was leading two games to one in what was supposed to have been a best-of-seven sees, but the series was called off after those three games because rain made it impractical to continue and both parent clubs were calling up their players from the Richmond and Columbus rosters.

Until recently, former Montreal manager Dick Williams and former Kansas City pilot Jim Frey were among the candidates for the Braves' managerial job, which Bobby Cox held for four years before he was fired at the end of the season. Cox was signed to manage the Toronto Blue Jays Thursday for the 1982 season.

Clete Boyer, one of the Oakland A's coaches, also has been mentioned as a possibility but he has said that neither Turner nor anyone else with the Braves has ever contacted him.

Following considerable soul-searching, it has been learned Turner has settled on Haas as Cox' successor although the Braves' owner says "no timetable" has been set for naming Atlanta's new manager.

Haas, a native of Paducah, Ky., has been in baseball 28 years and has served in the Braves' organization the past 15 as either a manager, coach or instructor. He had a less-than-spectacular career as an outfielder during the three seasons he played in the National League from 1957 to 1960 with the Chicago Cubs and Milwaukee Braves.

The most action he ever saw in the big leagues was with the Braves in 1960 when he batted .219 in 32 games for them. He enjoyed what might be called his "best season" with the Braves two years before that when he hit .357 in nine games.

The Senators hit 87 percent on their serves and 85 percent spiking, tough figures to beat.

Shoshone has a 16-3 record already in the books, but Saturday now looms as the biggest day of the season. The Indians will play the Third District runner-up at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at Mountain Home. The winner joins Gooding in the six-team state field and the loser stays home.

Messick said being prepared and keeping the momentum are the biggest factors when facing Gooding.

Gooding capped a double win by defeating Kimberly for the junior varsity crown. The Senators fell to the Bulldogs 15-5 in the first game of the final set before winning 15-9 and 15-13.

Camas County to state

The Mushers defeated Oakley in three games and Hagerman in two games in the A-4 Fourth District playoffs at Shoshone High Thursday to gain the A-4 state meet.

Oakley took the Mushers 16-14 in the first game before Camas romped 15-2 and 15-4. Hagerman gained the finals with a 15-9 and 15-10 win over Dietrich in the other semifinal.

Mickey McCammon, Cheryl Davis and Liane Huntington led the Mushers at the serving line in the title win over Hagerman.

Hagerman must win a playoff game Saturday at 5 p.m. at Mountain Home with the Third District runner-up in order to advance to state.

Dietrich gained the third place title with a 16-14, 15-7 win over Oakley.

The A-4 state meet will be held at CSI in conjunction with the A-3 tourney.

New York stranded eight runners in the first four innings against Keough and also had a runner cut down at the plate in the ninth on a strong throw by left fielder Mike Heath, a replacement for the injured Henderson.

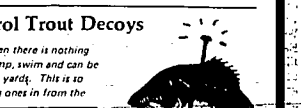

The Yankees scored three uncarned runs in the ninth with the aid of an error by second baseman McKay. Jerry Mumphrey led off with a walk and Larry Milbourne sacrificed and was safe at first when McKay dropped Keough's throw. After Dave Winfield struck out, pinch hitter Lou Piniella singled to left off relief[illegible] Underwood but Heath cut down Mumphrey at the plate.

Sooners' poor record doesn't fool Kansas

By United Press International

The pollsters haven't forgotten Oklahoma and neither has Don Fambrough.

The struggling Sooners, who fell under .500 for the first time in Barry Switzer's nine-year coaching tenure at 1-2-1 following a 34-14 loss to top-rated Texas, are clinging to a No. 19 rating in the UPI ratings this week.

Oklahoma is the only sub-.500 team on the list and only the third team with a losing record to appear in the 1981 ratings. The other two schools were Michigan and Nebraska in early September after each lost its opener.

The Sooners have not won a football game in more than a month; that was a 37-20 triumph over Wyoming in their season opener Sept. 12. Oklahoma took a week off and then, on successive weekends, lost to No. 6 Southern Cal 28-24, tied No. 17 Iowa State 7-7 and lost to Texas last weekend.

"In 1977 we lost to Texas and then won all the rest," said Switzer. "In 1979 we lost to Texas and then won all the rest. In 1980 we lost to Texas and then won all the rest. We'd like to think we can do it again, but we're not the same team. We're not as talented."

Whether the Sooners are as talented as in the past or not, they are still heavily favored to return to the .500 mark Saturday when they host injury-riddled Kansas.

"Nothing has changed at Oklahoma," said Kansas Coach Fambrough. "I looked at the Texas and Southern Cal films and I saw a fine football team. You can look at their 1-2-1 record all you want but don't let it lull you to sleep. I can guarantee you we won't.

BARRY SWITZER
. . . maintains hope

"They've played some of the toughest teams in the country in Southern Cal and Texas. The worst thing for us was for them to lose last Saturday in Dallas. But who knows. They're still Oklahoma. They still have the same people and same coaches that have won Big Eight title after Big Eight title. Nothing has changed as far as I'm concerned. They'll bounce back."

Gooding St. wins in soccer

GOODING — Gooding State School for the Deaf and Blind notched four goals before intermission Thursday and held on to defeat Bliss, 4-1 in a Southern Idaho Conference tournament soccer game.

Gooding State will face Ketchum Tuesday at 3 p.m. to decide the league championship. Bliss will play Dietrich that day at 1 p.m. for the consolation title.

Gooding State's Sam Weber opened the scoring with 7:45 elapsed in the first half. Minutes later teammate John Rhodes added two goals within 30 seconds. Ken Anderson tallied Gooding State's final goal.

McAdoo may go to Bucks

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Free agent Bob McAdoo, troubled by injuries the past two seasons, may be playing for Milwaukee this year if the Bucks are willing to pay the price, McAdoo's agent said Thursday.

Bill Madden, McAdoo's agent, said in Thursday's edition of The Milwaukee Journal he received a call from Bucks coach Don Nelson last week asking about the availability of the former NBA scoring champion.

"Nelson asked if he'd accept a minimum contract and work things out later," Madden said. "I said, 'Wait a minute. We're not talking about a ninth-round draft choice here.'"

McAdoo, who has played in only 74 games the past two seasons because of injuries, won three straight NBA scoring titles begining in 1973-74 while with the old Buffalo Braves. He had surgery last June to remove bone spurs from his foot.

Nelson would only make one comment about the matter: "It is my business to know where all NBA-caliber players are and how much they want to play in the league, whether they be free agents, retired or playing in Europe."

Royals add two coaches

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Two coaches, Cloyd Boyer and Joe Nossek, were added to the Kansas City Royals staff Thursday.

Boyer, 54, will become the Royals' pitching coach to replace Billy Connors. Boyer had 17 years as a professional player, 10 years as a scout, five years as a minor league pitching coach, three as a minor league manager and five years as a major league pitching coach.

Boyer, who lives in Webb City, Mo., spent the last four seasons as the pitching coach of the Atlanta Braves and the previous 15 years in varied roles with the New York Yankees.

Nossek, 40, will handle the duties at third base, taking over for Gordie MacKenzie. Nossek, of Amherst, Ohio, had 11 years as a player, nine years as a major league coach and one season as a minor league manager.

Hassey expects to be dealt

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Catcher Ron Hassey said there is a "very good chance" he will be traded by the Cleveland Indians during the off-season.

Addressing the Tucson Press Box Association Wednesday, Hassey said he is preparing for a possible trade and hopes to go to a team where he can play every day.

Hassey said if he is traded, he would like to stay on the West Coast and preferably in the American League. The Seattle Mariners and California Angels would be his two top choices, he said.

Hassey said he was disappointed he was platooned at catcher this year with Bo Diaz by Cleveland Manager Dave Garcia. Under platooning, Hassey only played in about half of this season's games.

The outlook for the Indians is "very poor," Hassey said. Unless Cleveland makes a lot of trades, the team will finish in sixth place again next year, he predicted.

All ISU boosters are welcome. Everybody interested should make reservations before 10 a.m. Monday with Marge Slotten of the Twin Falls ISU resident center at 734-4478.

Lakers trade guard Carter

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers announced Thursday they have traded second-year guard Butch Carter to Indiana in exchange for the Pacers' third-round draft choice next year.

Carter, drafted by the Lakers in the second round out of Indiana University in 1980, played in 54 games last season and averaged 5.6 points per game. He started 16 games in the middle of the season.

Fingers gets Cronin award

OAKLAND (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewers relief star Rollie Fingers was presented with the "Joe Cronin Award" for "distinguished achievement" in the American League Thursday night in a ceremony prior to the Oakland A's-New York Yankees game.

Fingers, a 35-year-old right-hander, was the easy winner after leading pitchers in both major leagues in relief pitching.

The trophy was presented to Fingers by Cronin, the Hall of Fame shortstop and former manager, club president and American League president and now the league's Chairman of the Board.

Fry may laugh, but Wolverines are not a joke

By United Press International

Iowa Coach Hayden Fry has been in a joking mood all week. He says that's the only way to approach his 12th-ranked team's Big Ten battle Saturday at fifth-ranked Michigan.

The Hawkeyes, trailing league-leading Wisconsin by a half game, face the 2-1 Wolverines in a game that could help determine whether Iowa will be making its first Rose Bowl appearance in 24 years.

While Iowa and Michigan are colliding at Ann Arbor, league leader Wisconsin seeks its fourth straight Big Ten win when it invades Michigan State. Other games pit Illinois at Ohio State; Purdue at Northwestern and Minnesota at Indiana.

Asked about playing at Michigan, Fry took a light-hearted approach.

"They won nine straight last year, have 17 of 22 starters back and 103,000 fans behind them," Fry said. "I haven't seen that many hogs in Iowa."

More seriously, Fry rated Michigan as the "best team" in the nation.

"Bo might be a little disappointed in their defense, but they are an offensive powerhouse," Fry said.

The Wolverines were supposed to have the best defense in the Big Ten but the Hawkeyes can lay a legitimate claim to that honor. Iowa has given up only 65 points all season.

Against Michigan, Iowa will try to contain a rushing attack led by the league's leading ground gainer, Butch Woolfolk, who gained 253 yards in last week's 38-20 triumph over Michigan State.

"Offensively yes, we've been getting the job done," Schembechler said. "Defensively, we're still not where I'd like us to be."

Schembechler rated the Hawks as the best defensive team his club has faced all year.

"And, they are an explosive team offensively," he added.

Wisconsin, fresh from its first victory over Ohio State in 21 years, will face 0-3 Michigan State, a team the Badgers hadn't beaten at home in 22 years before last year's 17-7 triumph.

Like Iowa, the Badgers have relied on their defense, which ranks second in the conference. In addition, Wisconsin is first in turnover differential and is the least penalized team in the league.

The Spartans led Michigan 20-16 last week before a 22-point Wolverine outburst in the final 17 minutes. Bryan Clark threw for 316 yards and two touchdowns in he game.

The last time Illinois and Ohio State collided, passing records fell by the wayside in the duel between Dave Wilson and Art Schlichter. Tony Eason has replaced Wilson for the Illini and figures to have another aerial shootout with Schlichter in the game featuring the league's top two passing attacks.

"Will it be like last year? Anything is possible," said OSU Coach Earle Bruce, whose team is 1-1 in the league after losing to Wisconsin. "We've thrown 171 times, Illinois 159. I bet you didn't know that."

Illinois Coach Mike White, whose team is 2-1, said the Illini benefitted from last year's game.

"The best thing going for us this week is that we've been there before," White said. "We went to Ohio State last year and gained some respect as well as some national attention. our players know what it takes and what they have to do."

Roll casting prevents nasty tangles with trees, brush

One of the chief difficulties in fly-casting on small streams like Billingsley or Silver creek is the overgrown trees or brush.

The overhead cast must extend in the air behind the angler before it can go forward, and that means many a caught cat-tail or having to leave your fly in the Russian olive tree.

The roll cast solves this problem.

Swen isn't an expert, and even he can master the roll cast.

A good place to practice this roll-cast during the winter is the water below Thousand springs power plant. You may surprise yourself and come up with a lunker also.

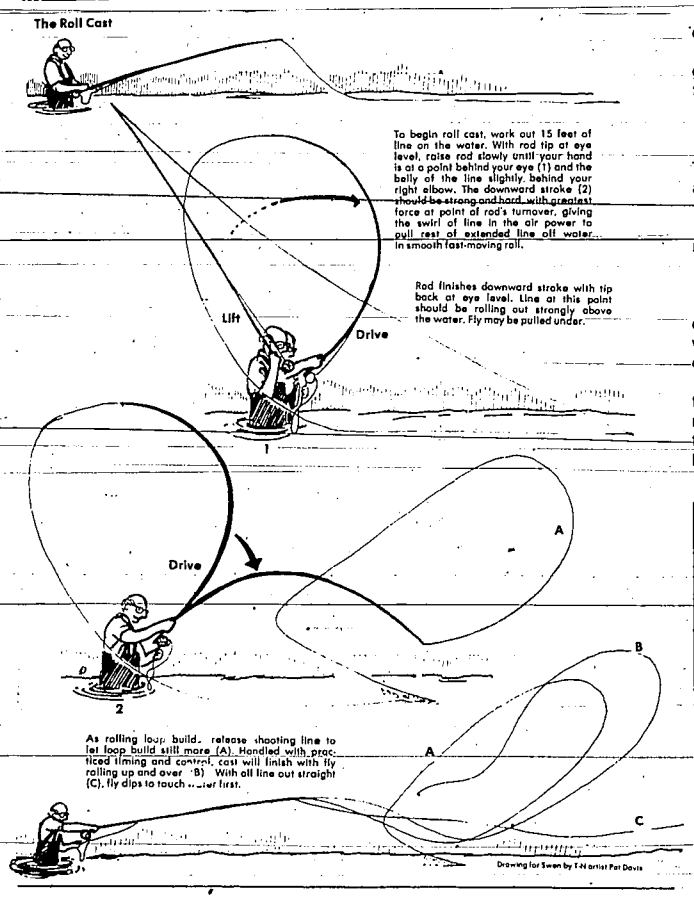

Many times pickup of your fly off the water spooks trout and you may never get another rise from the hole your fishing.

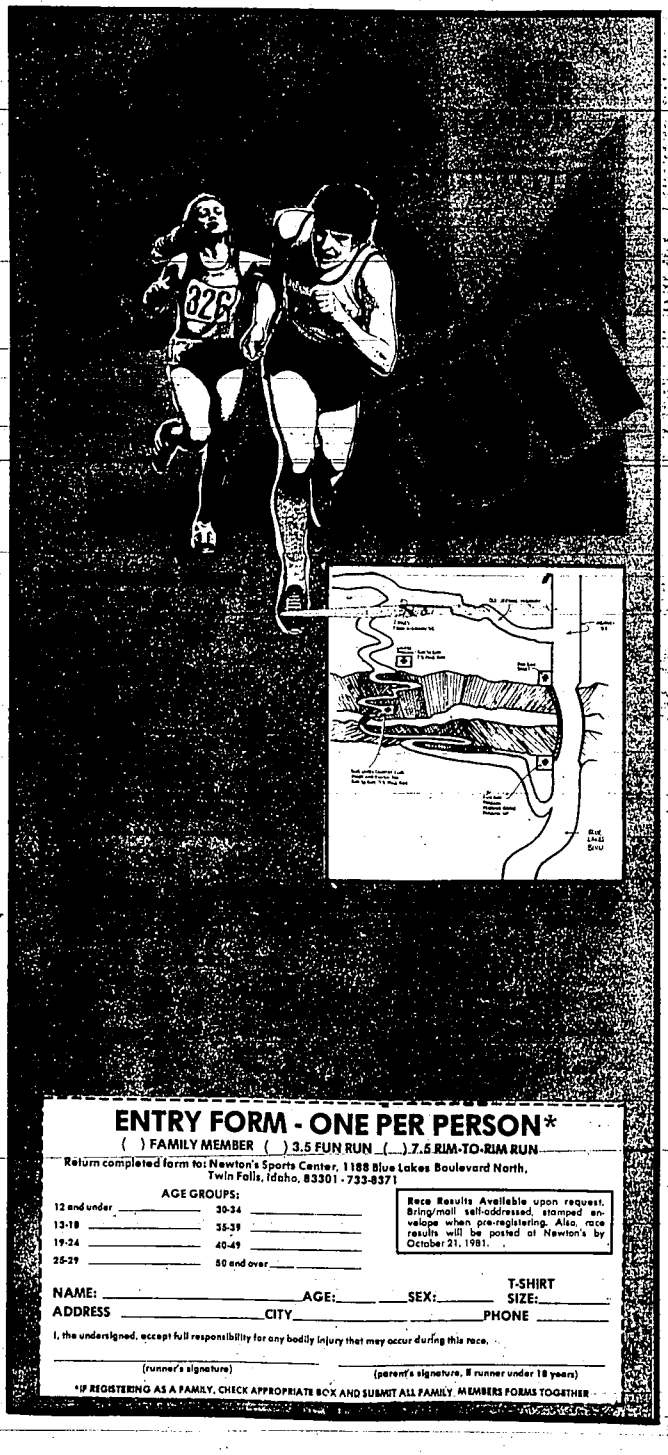

The late Bob Bixler gave me a secret that may help you with this problem. He calls it the snake pickup.

The pickup consists of waving the rod from side to side forcing a series of S curves into the line. It has the virtue of lifting your line and fly off the water, and just as the leader comes free you can slip the fly into a neat back cast without splashing.

Hold the rod at the ten o'clock position, and start shaking the line side to side, gradually elevating the rod to eleven o'clock. Don't rush it because neat execution depends on getting the S curves running down to the leader to free the line and leader from surface tension. When done correctly, the leader snakes out of the water without so much as a ripple.

Only long-range fire prevention can preserve wildlife habitats

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The fire season of 1981 leaves public land managers and sportsmen fairly well convinced that long-range prevention is the only answer to cyclic wildlife habitat loss.

The inevitable aftermath of the fires — stubby stands of cheat grass — are not universally disliked, however. Sheepmen have a partiality to the nuisance grass since it provides good early spring and late fall forage, when the sprouts are young, tender and taking advantage of Magic Valley's spring and fall rains.

But if cheat grass is good for sheep, it is its only redeeming quality. From a wildlife standpoint, vast plantations of cheat grass are biological deserts.

Terry Rich, wildlife biologist for the Shoshone District Bureau of Land Management, joins a growing number who feel that simple reaction to fires is not sufficient, that inevitably, the scar of wild fires on Magic Valley's public lands, will convert it all to cheat grass.

Natural reproduction of forbes and brush (rabbit, bitter and sage) is virtually impossible for two reasons. First, the history of the area shows a continual reburning of some areas. Secondly, cheat grass is among nature's most aggressive invaders. Once established, it's pattern is to crush out competing plants by virtue of its lifestyle.

Cheat grass seed germinates in the fall, taking advantage of the usual late rains that visit the western deserts and semi-arid lands to get a head start on next spring. Since it already has started, the first warm weather and moisture sparks its growth, effectively choking other annual grasses that germinate in the spring.

From a sheepman's standpoint, this pattern is ideal. The cheat provides good forage in the spring that lasts until the mountain pastures open. The fall germination provides more benefit since it is available when the sheep come off the high range.

Because dry cheat grass is one of the best fire conductors known, it provides its own vehicle for maintaining and enlarging its territory.

For several reasons there is direct conflict between men and interests in the direction they want land management to take.

"A sheepman told me once," said Don Zuck, a BLM advisory member and prominent Idaho wildlife conservationist, "there is no such thing as a bad smoke."

He referred specifically to fire's ability to displace brush and competing vegetation which is not desireable to livestock and would be replaced either naturally or through seeding by grasses.

This conflict of interest previously was not a factor in BLM management. The agency was charged by Congress to manage the lands basically to maximum yield for grazing. Several years ago, Congress amended that stance to give wildlife equal — or nearly so — consideration.

This has been hailed by sportsmen as a giant step forward. Ostensibly, it would assure perpetuity to native flatland or desert dwellers and enhance winter range for big game through preservation of brush fields.

Implementation, however, has been a different story — for several reasons.

First is the matter of seed source. While crested wheat seed can be purchased for about 35 cents per pound, bitterbrush, wild rye grasses and sagebrush seed will run 10 to 12 dollars per pound. Additionally, the sizes, weights, etc., of the wild seeds are so diverse, they are plainly a pain to plant.

The other major problem is germination, which is considerably less than grasses. The brush seedlings are extremely susceptible to freezing, heat, lack of moisture, etc. And once burned, most of the brushes, particularly bitterbrush, will not re-sprout.

Where grass seed can be strewn — drilling is preferable — from helicopters with good anticipation of success, the brush seeds should be buried. A monumental task when dealing with burns up to 80,000 acres of which 30 to 40 percent would rock.

Last, and certainly not least, is the red tape that must be untangled before any reclamation seeding can start. This includes locating the seed and having it tested for germination, preparing cost and logistics plans that would include vegetation variety percentages compared to previous stands and then awarding contracts for the seeding proper.

Then comes the matter of funding those projects — and don't forget the bucks spent by secretaries and other BLM personnel in compiling those plans and reports.

The Shoshone District had 310,000 acres burned last summer, the vast majority on the east side of U.S. Highway 93. Two major burns of a year ago have interconnected those of 1981, leaving a vast scar that inevitably will be cheat grass.

Price said the Shoshone district has $45,000 earmarked for special projects like reseeding. All of that money will be spent trying to reseed the 1981 burns — but that will amount to less than 10 percent of the total acreage involved. The remainder is forfeit to cheat grass.

"The ideal time to reseed is as soon as the fire cools," Price said. "At that time you have a couple of inches of ashes, filled with all the nutrients you want for a seed bed. The ash would settle and cover the seed and then the fall rains, like we're having this week, would establish the seed. But because of planning and reports that must be completed, it is impossible. We may not be able to start re-seeding until next spring. By then the cheat grass will have germinated and the spring competition for moisture and space will be dramatic."

Price said the fires have hurt some deer wintering areas, most specifically along a lava outcropping that harboring about 500 animals each year. There were other areas used by the deer but not in such large numbers. The major impact was on sage grouse habitat, particularly strutting and breeding grounds. Without sage, any area is useless to grouse.

Price said there was a probability that both the grouse and big game could winter farther north. But he noted the snow depths increase perceptibly as one goes farther north. A hard winter could severely cripple populations in that area.

Since the BLM hasn't the funding to provide full re-seeding, particularly with a good brush and forbes mixture, the area must be considered lost to wildlife benefit for the foreseeable future.

The major problem, as Price sees it, is man only reacts to fires but hasn't formalized a logical prevention plan. He said crested wheat grass, a livestockman's preference, is fairly fire resistant.

Each candidate's voting lever is located just above the name; a voting lever must be turned down over the name of the candidate for whom you wish to vote. ...ting lever down.

The machine is so arranged that you can turn down only the proper number of voting lever for each office.

No votes are registered until the curtain lever is moved to open the curtain, and so you can make as many chages as you desire while the curtain lever is at the right side.

No one will know how you have voted because the movement of the curtain lever returns the voted voting levers to the unvoted position before the curtain begins to open.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

In IMP scoring it is hardly worthwhile to try to score 80 extra points for seven notrump as against seven in a minor suit. You can gain two IMPs but are risking a great many in case you fall one short.

The bidding by Chemla and Mari of France is shown here. Mari had almost enough for a forcing two bid, but contented himself with just one-diamond opening. Chemla responded two clubs. Mari's jump to four hearts was a specialized bid to show strong club support, a heart contol and a single-ton spade.

Chemla used Blackwood and when Mari showed three aces he simply bid seven clubs, which would still be a laydown if Mari did not hold either the king or queen of diamonds. He could have bid five notrump and found out about the diamond king, but there was no way to find out about the queen of diamonds which was necessary to yield 13 tricks at notrump.

Rubin and Soloway for the United States used a very specialized series of bids to reach the same seven-club contract, so as should be expected in world competition the board was a standoff.

ESPN may charge extra for major events soon

Big, expensive changes ahead for TV sports

By BOB WISEHART
Newhouse News Service

The alliance between ESPN, the 24-hour-a-day sports cable network, and ABC could turn both sports and television inside-out and upside-down.

Thus far, all we have is the announcement of a partnership, so the impact cannot be measured. But there's no doubt it's only the first rock to tumble down the mountain, preceding an avalanche that surely will change the packaging and presentation of American sports.

The merger brings us closer to the time when fans will have to pay for major sports events they've been able to see for free on commercial TV for more than 30 years.

The bare bones of the agreement are as follows: ABC and the Getty Oil Co., which owns ESPN, announced a pay-cable sports TV service that will offer viewers a "blockbuster" sports event each month, starting next spring.

ESPN is available on cable TV systems throughout the country, and is in some 12 million homes. It is an advertiser-supported service offered on cable systems without additional charge to subscribers.

But those special monthly sports events won't be free. They will pre-empt ESPN's regular programming. The only way subscribers will be able to see them is to pay an extra charge, probably in the $5 to $10 range.

If a subscriber isn't interested, the ESPN signal into his home will be scrambled for the duration of that event.

The recent Tommy Hearns-Sugar Ray Leonard championship fight was cited as the kind of thing the service would offer. The fight was priced beyond the range of the commercial TV networks, meaning they would have had to pay so much for broadcast rights they would have lost money.

With an increasing number of sports events priced beyond what the networks can afford, and others rapidly getting there, ABC's alliance with ESPN gives the network enormous clout.

Sources say CBS also was wooing ESPN, but was outbid.

"We see the Leonard-Hearns fight as an example of the way some sports events are headed," says Herb Granath, head of ABC Video Enterprises. "We had a choice of sitting and watching our sports franchise erode. . .as cable grows, or making our own move so that we could continue to be a major factor in the sports world."

Another important factor is that the deal will allow ESPN to supplement coverage of events to which ABC holds broadcast rights.

For example, during a major golf tournament, such as the Masters or the PGA championship; a network usually broadcasts portions of the last two rounds on Saturday and Sunday. Under the agreement, ESPN could show all the action ABC couldn't handle.

This could apply to golf, tennis, track, the Olympics and any sports event stretching over a period of time longer than ABC can use.

ABC has bought TV rights to the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles for $315 million, outbidding, among other competitors, ESPN. It is expected the agreement means the Olympics will be televised on both ABC and ESPN.

Turning back to the monthly "blockbuster" sports events, it's possible ESPN will create and promote its own events, such as a special Bjorn Borg-John McEnroe tennis match.

ESPN, based in Bristol, Conn., is one of the major success stories in cable TV. Two years ago, ESPN was seen in only 1.4 million homes. That grew to 4 million last year and 12 million now. ESPN figures to be in 40 million homes by 1985.

ESPN's biggest problem has been in landing major events because they were already tied up by contract with ABC, CBS or NBC. Getty Oil has invested some $50 million in ESPN, but prior to the merger the cable service was not expected to show a profit until 1984.

To gaze into the crystal ball for a moment, here is what many in the TV industry see ahead: the 1987 Super Bowl being broadcast live not on ABC, NBC or CBS, but on ESPN or some outfit like it. To see it, viewers would pay several dollars for the privilege. If they don't want to pay, they'll probably be able to catch a repeat of the game a few days later on a commercial network.
